Fur Hat and Bag Ensembles Add Drama to Fall Costumes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The prevailing formula for smart clothes this year is the dress or coat or suit that is classic in its simplicity, the same to serve as a background for accessories that are as eye-appealing as good taste and money can buy. This leads up to describing the hat and bag set to the right. Here you see the "last word" in fur luxury interpreted in this stunning Cossack hat, made of black seal, together with a massive matching bag. The hat is ornamented with an imposing big jewel, done in the true Russian spirit, the magnificent success of Russian arms having inspired this millinery triumph from John Frederics. The little Cossack hat is an outstanding favorite this season.

Rich browns are making color news this year, and you can choose nothing smarter than an outfit done in a radiant tone of brown, the same highlighted with hat and other details worked in handsome mink. The voguish hat shown at the top is trimmed with mink, thus calling attention to the costume entire as a "study in brown." Her gold hoop earclips and flexible gold bracelets are perfect to wear with this costume. It is just such smart wearable fur-trimmed hats as this that women will be wearing with their smart wool costumes the winter through. Smart accompaniments to these hats include a drawstring bag made of mink with detachable mink cuffs that may be worn at will. Moral—save your scraps of mink. Your furrier and your milliner can fashion an accessory collection out of them "worth a king's ransom" in appearance.

Don't throw even the tiniest swatch of fur away. In the fur pieces left over from shortening your coat or restyling it, lurk possibilities of a new drawstring bag or a "tricky" neck piece or a lapel gadget. Out of a tidbit of fur clever designers will evolve a wee bow to clip on your breast pocket of your suit or a bowknot to fasten on each cuff of your gloves or to clip on your dress-up pumps.

IF IT'S something of outstanding style distinction you're seeking this season to give dash and fillip to your appearance, keep your eye on what's doing in way of working fur into hats and bags and a multitude of other accessories, such as will impart a touch of elegance to your costume that will rate you among the best dressed wherever you go.

The importance of fur in one's costume makeup is the subject of conversation here, there and everywhere in the fashion realm. Unprecedented is the enthusiasm shown for coats that are fur-lined. To keep pace with fashion's stride one really should have a glorified wool coat that is handsomely lined with fur. Then there's the flair for fur-trimmed suits and dresses that is sweeping at a mad pace this season throughout all fashion centers. And when one's dress or suit is trimmed with fur it is a safe guess that the ensemble will be completed with a hat and bag made of matching fur.

The swank, the novelty and the wealth of ideas expressed in these glamorous hat-and-bag sets simply cannot be expressed in words. Some idea of their superb styling is conveyed in the two "sets" shown in the illustration. The designer of the striking hat and bag pictured at the left teams ocelot and black leather together in a most fetching manner. This cunning "milk-maid" model catches the sprightly air of youth with its bright spotted furs. The little shirred poke with its open curved back has smart leather bows and a leather facing for the spotted fur brim. The large oval of matching ocelot is sheathed with black leather to carry out the ensemble idea. Wear this to town with a dark dress or suit—it will be smart for day or evening.

Rayon Taffeta

Some ladies for dressy events and dances is somewhat high fashion and in the new fall program. This dark rayon dress in diagonal-striped taffeta effective in black rayon taffeta. Its dressy aprons front bows and flowing tier is charmingly feminine. There is just the right amount of fullness in the skirt to make it swing with graceful ease. Use the bows where fullness is needed a single bow at the front inflates most and is used at the maximum strength and saves fabric. Sleeves which have gained their fame will be as interesting to guide you in sewing.

Lace Bodices

Rayon taffeta dresses are here, with bodices full of lace.

Ration-Free Shoes Come in Gabardine

Thanks to the new durable plastic soles of recent invention and to the smart gabardine for uppers, you can now be smartly shod sans coupon. In the collection of non-ration shoes that are so because they use no priority materials you will find such attractive styles as strap sandals that are made with a plastic sole that will wear like leather. It's baby last and open toe wonders toward making your foot look small and graceful. A favorite for practical wear is the Mary Jane platform sandal. You can get it in black or brown gabardine with matching non-scuff low, sensible heels. In the glamour class is a slick gabardine platform pump with a common sense heel of patent. Open toes and backless is this pump with bows of grosgrain to give it flair. Real dressy pumps such as you can wear with your smart afternoon frocks are available in the new gabardine footwear.

Trapunto Trimming

The beloved trapunto trim holds good for this fall and winter. The latest gesture is to enhance the new and popular bright velveteen with trapunto quilted design. The effect is most attractive. You can find these smart frocks in the stores but if you have a velveteen dress that calls for a glamour touch you can get pattern, material and instructions at any fancy work department for trapunto quilted design. If you can sew even a little you can easily, without much loss of effort, give your afternoon velvet a new gala accent.

RUSSIA'S FUTURE FORM OF GOVERNMENT

IN OUR PRIDE we like to think of America as the dominant power of the world. We may be that today, but what of the comparatively near future?

The dominant powers of the tomorrows may very easily be Russia and China. We grew to greatness because we had the resources with which to work, with a form of government and an economic system that created a will to work. Today Russia has the resources, she has the man power and given the will to work, she can outdistance us within the next half century.

The Russian government today is not communistic. It is purely a dictatorship and dictatorships last only so long as the dictator lasts. The dictatorship in Russia is providing education for Russian youth. The next generation will be more capable of individual and mass thinking than has any generation of the past. The dictatorship of Joseph Stalin has made many things possible and these have meant advancement. Today Russia is at the threshold of, for her, a new world. She has oils, minerals, timber, an abundance of fertile soil and man power. All she lacks is that economic system out of which is created the will to achieve.

Joseph Stalin will pass and with him, in all probability, will pass the dictatorship, to be followed by a form of government that will provide the needed economic system. Should that prove true, the Russian people and the people of the world will thank Joseph Stalin for his accomplishments. It is my belief that communism was but a passing phase in the life of the nation. It was a boogy man that lives today more in the minds of zealots in other countries than in Russia.

JAPANESE POPULATION IN WESTERN STATES

SOME SIX YEARS AGO, when in Honolulu, I looked for material for a newspaper article on the subject of the Japanese population of the Hawaiian islands. I found many, a big majority, who pronounced them good citizens. They supported such statements with what seemed to be good evidence. Others, including intelligence officers of both the army and navy, were emphatic in their denunciation of the Japs and insisted they were an ever-present source of danger to the islands and to the nation.

My interest in the subject had been aroused by people I had talked to in California. The Californians had insisted the Japs up and down the coast were a menace to the safety of the nation and could not be trusted. The people of the coast states had, for years, attempted to impress upon congress and people of states farther east that the Japs were a dangerous element, many of them paid spies of the Tokyo government, and not to be trusted.

After weighing the evidence gathered at Honolulu, I decided the Japs were good citizens, loyal to the United States, and wrote my story from that viewpoint.

Events have demonstrated how entirely wrong I was in my estimate of the Jap character. The Japs were all the intelligence officers of the army and navy said they were. They were all the people of the Pacific coast states said they were. Today, as a resident of a Pacific coast state, I trust they may never again be permitted residence in my town and my state. If the people of the Pacific coast have the say so, they never will.

HOW INFLATION CAN AFFECT US

A LETTER from an old newspaper editor friend tells me of his retirement after 52 years of newspapering. In his letter he says: "I have enough to see me through if I do not live too long." But I wonder if he considers all the possibilities. We may have money. Judged from our past expenditures, it may be enough to last a definite length of time. But are past experiences a criterion for the future? The ugly head of inflation is just beyond the horizon. The dollars of today will depreciate to the values of tomorrow. He who must live on a fixed income may find it will not provide the price of tomorrow's bread. It is an uncertain age and the most helpless individual is he who has saved that he may have a competence for his declining years based on the conditions of the yesteryears. Inflation is no respecter of individuals. We do not know, we can only hope.

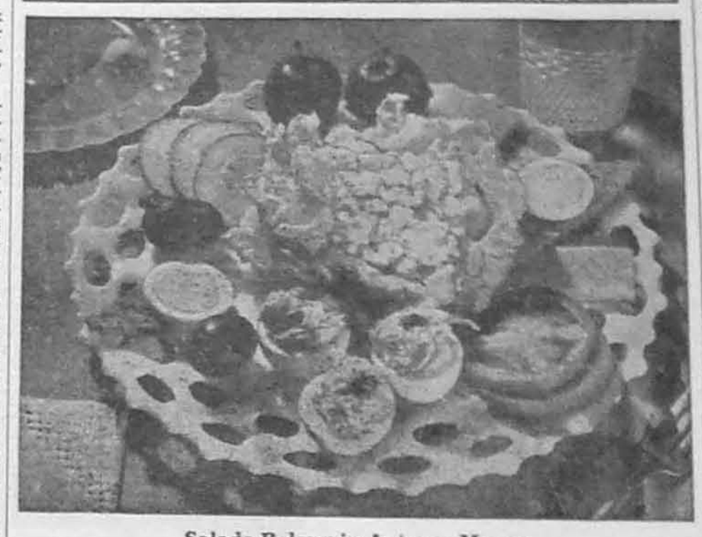
HOUSEHOLD MEMOS by Lynn Chambers



Salads Belong in Autumn Menus
(See Recipes Below.)

Salads for Fall

Is a salad an integral part of your diet or do you set it aside just for summer months when vegetables are easy to obtain and serve in salad form?

Food authorities and doctors have long recommended the use of raw fruits and vegetables in the diet not only to guarantee more vitamins and minerals to the dietary, but to give the necessary roughage to the system. Vegetables contain a great deal of cellulose and are not as easily digested as the softer foods. This means they aid in proper function and elimination and belong daily in every diet.

Although we are limited in the amount of fresh vegetables obtainable in the fall and winter months, there are some available which offer many possibilities for salads. Cabbage, carrots, citrus fruits and apples are the most common. For a more substantial salad item, use cottage cheese. It will also give you a goodly amount of calcium, needed for proper bone and tooth development.

If your family has been shrunk by the fall here are two recipes especially designed for smaller families:

Tomatoes Stuffed With Green Pepper Slaw.
(Serves 2)

Cut a thin slice from the stem end of each tomato. Remove seeds and part of the pulp. Sprinkle inside with salt. Invert and chill. Fill with finely shredded cabbage combined with green pepper, moistened with a dressing made of 4 tablespoons sweet cream, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons vinegar.

Green Bean Salad.
(Serves 2)

Place green stringless beans, cooked and chilled in individual lettuce cups. Combine 1 tablespoon vinegar, ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper to taste. Beat with egg beater or shake in a jar until well blended. Mash 3 tablespoons Roquefort cheese and then add oil and vinegar mixture slowly, stirring until very smooth. Pour over beans and serve at once.

Surprise Vegetable Salad.
Sliced boiled beets
Sliced boiled string beans
Sliced boiled carrots
Boiled green peas
Boiled lima beans
French dressing
Chopped chives
Boiled potatoes

Prepare and cook separately, in the usual manner, an equal quantity of all the vegetables mentioned in recipe. Boil potatoes with their jackets, peel while still warm and marinate in french dressing while still warm. When ready to serve vegetables, have them well chilled and arrange in layers in a large salad bowl, starting with beets at the bottom, followed by lima beans, then string beans, next with carrots, followed by peas. When all vegetables are used, pour over them a tart, well-seasoned french dressing. Cover the whole with a layer of potatoes, being sure that all the peas are covered. Sprinkle top with fresh, chopped chives and serve.

Greens, be they lettuce, romaine, chicory or escarole, need little else but a dressing for they are perfectly delicious just so and a splendid course for a heavy type of dinner:

Salad With Egg Dressing.
(Serves 6)

2 heads of lettuce
4 hard-boiled eggs
⅓ cup cream
¼ cup lemon juice or cider vinegar
Salt and pepper
Prepared mustard

Wash lettuce carefully and dry thoroughly. Put the yolks of the eggs through a ricer and let them drop to the bottom of a well-chilled salad bowl. Add a little prepared mustard and stir with a wooden spoon, adding the cream gradually. Season to taste with the salt and pepper, then add lemon juice and vinegar. Add the lettuce, toss lightly and sprinkle the chopped whites of egg over all. Serve on cold plates.

The use of cottage cheese with salads gives them a heartiness which is particularly necessary in the cooler weather. Here is a well-seasoned salad, pretty and colorful:

Apple, Carrot, Cottage Cheese Salad
(Serves 6)

3 apples, coarsely diced
2 cups shredded raw carrot
1 tablespoon onion, finely minced
1 cup cottage cheese
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Dice unpeeled apples and combine with grated carrot and onion. Add the cottage cheese blended with mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Mix well. Serve on lettuce.

Molded Cranberry Salad.
(Serves 8 to 10)

½ pound cranberries
1 medium-sized apple, unpeeled
1 orange and rind
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 package orange-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
½ cup cold water
½ cup chopped celery

Pick over cranberries, wash and drain well. Grind cranberries, apple and orange (including rind), saving any liquid which remains. Stir in sugar. Cover and set aside while gelatin is dissolved in hot water. Add cold water and allow to become partly jellied, then add cranberry mixture and jelly. This may be poured either into a loaf pan or individual molds rinsed with cold water. Allow to jell, then unmold on lettuce.

Sandwich Fillings

Don't forget that raw vegetables with all their good vitamins and minerals are wonderful as sandwich fillings. Grind raw spinach leaves with crisp bacon, hard-cooked egg, onion, moistened with mayonnaise. Or, combine equal parts of raw carrot and turnip and mix with chopped chives, peanuts and mayonnaise. This is good on French bread.

Are you having a time stretching meats? Write to Miss Lynn Chambers for practical help, at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Ill. Don't forget to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Lynn Says:

Salad Notes: Ingredients for a salad should be large enough to retain their identity. It's not a good idea to hide a vegetable the family does not like by chopping it very fine. Shred, but do not chop vegetables.

Simplest salads are the most attractive. A salad should taste as good as it looks.

Toss ingredients lightly, never stir ambitiously. Dressing need not cover every piece. Salad greens should always be clean, crisp, fresh.

Drain all vegetables thoroughly, before using. Serve them on clean, well-chilled plates, as cold as possible.

Vary salads from day to day. Try new combinations of color, vegetables and fruit.

Things to do

THE "Sunflower" is one of the easiest of the quilt designs to make—the diamond-shaped pieces are easy to cut and a block works up quickly. Use brown-flecked percales, tiny patterned cream and yellow calicoes, grass-green and leaf-green cottons. Do the center in vivid yellow. Quilt has 12 pieced blocks, each 14 inches square—12 plain blocks.

Hardest Wood Used for Shaft Bearings in Ships

Many of the ships being built today use wood as material for stern shaft bearings—the hardest wood in the world—usually called lignum-vitae. According to the dictionary, lignum-vitae is also known as the zygophyllaceous genus guaiacum—but this term, obviously isn't often used around shipyards.

The wood, in addition to being very hard, is also very heavy—it is so heavy that it will not float in water—so hard that shaping it is a most difficult procedure—yet each block is worked to a .004 inch exactness. In a six-foot stern shaft bearing, there are 128 separate blocks. Channels between the blocks permit the circulation of salt water, the only lubrication necessary.

Small Manufacturers To Produce Civilian Items in '44

Manufacturers were notified this week by the Smaller War Plants Corporation of Washington, D. C., that a number of essential civilian products must be produced in the next year in order to provide the civilian population with items necessary to health, safety and general welfare. About 700 items are being programmed for production in 1944, the report states, and it is contemplated that these items must be manufactured in part by small manufacturers with open capacity which have manufactured these items in the past.

It is anticipated that a large number of manufacturers will take immediate advantage of this information, and manufacturers of civilian items who believe their products may be included among the civilian items referred to should contact the nearest WPB office after making a definite appointment.

War Production Swells on McNeel Demonstration Farm in County

Lime, Phosphate Increase Feed for Livestock and Give Higher Farm Output.

Meeting war goals of food and feed production presents no new problems to Moffett McNeel, Extension-TVA demonstration farmer of Hillsboro community, Pocahontas county.

For four years Mr. McNeel has been increasing production and has been strengthening his farm for the even greater output now asked, explains Ben Morgan, county agricultural agent. This has come about largely through adjustments in his farming made around the experimental use of high-analysis phosphatic fertilizer from the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Records kept by Mr. McNeel and analyzed by the Agricultural Extension Service of West Virginia University show that the farm's crops yield index (comparison with average yield for state on the basis of 100 for the average) increased 159 in 1939 to 198 for 1940, 218 in 1941, and 248 for 1942.

A comparison of inventories show that there were 38 head of cattle on the farm at the beginning of 1939, 46 at the same time in 1942. Sheep increased from 47 to 54 and hogs from 27 to 60.

The TVA phosphate was applied on small grains seeded with clover and grasses, on permanent pasture, and as a top dressing on meadows. Bundles of hay illustrating the greater and more nutritious growth from mineral-treated meadows have been shown at the county fair.

Minerals Improve Pasture

The thing Mr. McNeel likes to talk about is the way the minerals improve pasture. He keeps untreated check plots, and says the animals taste the grasses from a check plot only once, then pass on to the mineral-rich herbage. The taller growth on the unfertilized plots substantiate this statement.

Best of all, he likes to make a fence line comparison with untreated pasture. The fertilized sod is green and thick with nutritious bluegrass and white clover, while the unfertilized pasture is studded with unpalatable straw-colored broomsedge. One corner of the untreated field contains less broomsedge than the rest because that corner received an application of lime several years ago.

Mr. Morgan says that Mr. McNeel's experience in increasing the quantity and quality of pasture and hay by using lime and phosphate is helping other farmers meet war goals.

BETTER PASTURE—MORE WOOL, MEAT

Moffett McNeel, Pocahontas county demonstration farmer, discusses pasture improvement with his county agricultural agent. As a result of treating his pasture with lime and high-analysis phosphate furnished by the Tennessee Valley Authority for demonstration purposes, he is now able to keep more cattle, sheep, and hogs, producing more meat and wool.

Mountaineer Chaplain in Army Called Crack Shot of His Outfit

"Stonewall" Jackson, West Virginia's most famous soldier, once had a chaplain for his chief of staff, and there have been others who have become famous for their ability and willingness to fight as well as preach. But not many army chaplains can outshoot their fellow staff officers like Lt. Col. William Carlyle Williams, a former member of the West Virginia national guard now serving with the 6th airforce in the Carribean.

Chaplain Williams, who was pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Welch from 1926 until he entered the army air corps in 1941, is known around headquarters as an "old squirrel gunner,' 'and he has proved his stuff by turning in a fifty card of skeet, and making a better score with a 50-cal. machine gun against a rapidly-moving target than a 100 aviation cadets young enough to be his grandsons.

Former Squirrel Hunter

Although reluctant to talk about the material side of his career, considering himself primarily a spiritual adviser, the chaplain frankly admits that he isn't as good now as he used to be when he hunted squirrels in West Virginia mountains. However classification cards at a pistol shoot held several months ago at 6th air force headquarters testify that he turned in the highest score.

Last month while visiting the flexible gunnery school for aviation cadets at Harlington, Tex., with several ranking air force officers, he was invited to try his skill with a machine gun. The chaplain never had fired one in his life, but after studying the weapon and the several targets moving on a circular track 30 miles per hour, at a distance varying between 200 and 500 yards, he decided that it was just about the same as winging a turkey with a shotgun. He proceeded to prove it by getting 74 hits out of 200 rounds. Nobody else approached his score, and he was further informed that it was higher than that of any cadets who had shot that day.

Since joining the air corps, Chaplain Williams has been a "flying parson" in every sense of the term. Last year he flew over 50,000 miles in the performance of his duties, and has visited many times every base in the Caaribbean area. He is one of the best liked officers in the airforce, reports say.

Lt. Col. Williams, under appointment by the general assembly helped introduce the "Belmont Covenant Plan" into the Southern Presbyterian churches in 1934 and 1935; was moderator of Tygart's Valley in 1923 of Bluestone in 1928 and of the Synod of West Virginia in 1938.

In addition to his manifold activities, both as a clergyman and peacetime soldier, Chaplain Williams found time to contribute numerous articles to church papers, and took a prominent part in state religious circles before entering the air corps.

Miss Norma Sue Judy of Washington, D. C.; Ralph Judy, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Keith Judy of Fredericktown, Va., spent several days with their sister, Mrs. E. L. Cutlip. Keith leaves this week for training in the navy air corps.

Mrs. M. D. Vaughn has been ill with flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilfong received a letter from their son, who is in the navy, stationed at Brooklyn, after being moved from Mississippi. His brother, Marcus Williams, goes to training on October 26. Reuss has been employed in Maryland for the past years.

Miss Virginia Stanley and Miss Vaughn were Sunday guests of Miss Gertrude Kinnison.

To Hasten Victory

No American wants this war to go one minute beyond the time we can bring it to a victorious end. To hasten that victory—to save possibly the lives of millions of our boys on our far flung fronts—it is imperative that every American can do his part in the Second War Loan. There is an investment to fit every purse. The most you can do is little enough compared with the sacrifice offered by our boys in service. They give their lives —you lend your money.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, scanty or too frequent urination, and burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes shows there is something wrong with kidneys or bladder.
Don't delay in using Doan's Pills. Doan's are for poorly functioning kidneys. They help the kidneys flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Wedding of Edythe Mae Oxendale And Wm. J. Miller Held Here

Miss Edythe Mae Oxendale, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Fred Oxendale of Marlinton, became the bride of Mr. William J. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Miller, of Huntington, in a high noon ceremony Monday, which was read by the bride's father, at the Marlinton Methodist Church, of which he is pastor.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and ferns with lighted tapers in branched candelabra formed the altar background. Mrs. Frank E. Johnson played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Miss Edith Moore who sang "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Johnson played the "Poeme" softly throughout the ceremony.

The bride's gown was fashioned in princess effect of blue grosgrain taffeta. Her headdress was an off-the-face black felt hat with blue feathers and veil. Her corsage was of white orchids.

Edward A. Moore gave the bride in marriage.

Mrs. Edward A. Moore, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a lovely frock of black crepe with a large heartshaped hat with a long veil. Her accessories were black. Mrs. Moore carried white gladiolus and her corsage was of yellow roses.

Mr. Lloyd Miller of Huntington served as best man for his brother. Miss Miller, sister of the bridegroom, lighted the candles.

A gardenia corsage was worn by Mrs. Fred Oxendale, the bride's mother, who was attired in blue, with black accessories. Her hat was of the feathered style.

Mrs. Frank Johnson wore a rose colored dress with dark blue, while Miss Mary Rice chose blue with yellow and wore a corsage of yellow baby chrysanthemums tied with blue ribbon.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Oxendale home. Receiving the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Miller and Rev. and Mrs. Oxendale. Guests were used through the living room and dining rooms. A lace table cloth was used on the table, which bore three tapers. The centerpiece was a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with a miniature bride and bridegroom under a satin arch. Chicken salad, hot biscuits, coffee and cake were served to the guests.

Other out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Miss Lillian Row of Huntington and Mrs. Barbara Ann of Mason City.

Mrs. Miller attended Oak Hill public schools, Glenville State College and Marshall College. She received her A.B. degree at the latter school. For 2 years she was engaged in social work in Huntington and Wayne county and is now employed as case investigator by the U. S. Employment Bureau in Huntington.

Mr. Miller was educated in the schools of Huntington and for the past 4 years has been employed by the International Nickel Co. there.

The bridal couple left Marlinton Monday afternoon for Huntington where they were to board a midnight train for a honeymoon trip to Detroit, O. The bride's traveling costume was a beige outfit with brown accessories.

Business Club Active Here

That wide-awake Business and Professional Women's Club of Pocahontas County has really been doing a lot toward the war effort. During Business Women's Club Week, October 10 to 16 the national theme was "Living on the Home Front."

The Club checked up on its girls and found that almost all of them were working for the Red Cross in either the sewing, knitting, or surgical dressings programs.

On October 12 when the Army "Salute to Wood" Caravan visited Marlinton, the B. P. W. Club and Rotary Club sponsored a dance in the high school gym which was a big success. The Club also sponsored the F. E. A. Bill.

In most of the stores one will find boxes labeled "Jab the Japs With Junk Jewelry." This jewelry means a lot to the boys stationed in the South Pacific who can trade it to the natives for food and for materials with which to make chairs, tables and other articles. The Club girls feel that with so many of the men away, the items of jewelry are not such necessary adjuncts to personal charm just now anyway. Incidentally, they would like for anyone to drop old pieces of junk jewelry into the boxes.

Two members of the local club are in the Armed services—Miss Mary Elizabeth Berry and Miss Genevieve Moore.

The Club members feel that their "Living on the Home Front" theme is of vital concern to all, since before the country can win the war and the peace in the world, it must first win it on the home front, in our own country.

The Business and Professional Women's Club is struggling with problems here at home, under the local leadership of Miss Edith May, and that of the state president, Mrs. Mary Williamson White.

May success attend its efforts!

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, a newspaper man before his induction into the army, has been receiving his basic training at Fort Bragg, N. C. He has gone through the "hardest" weeks of his army career and has been classified as a cook. In addition, he has spent a considerable share of his spare time on KP duty. He is familiar with the finer points of "goldbricking" and "shooting the breeze." He has mastered most of the army slang expressions and has rather completely adjusted himself to training camp routine. As we pick up the story Private Hargrove and some of his buddies are having supper and are about to hand the mess sergeant his share of the day's abuse.

CHAPTER XII

Orville D. Pope, Mess Sergeant of Headquarters Battery and master of all he surveys (so long as he stays in the kitchen), strolled past our table like a happy night-club owner inspecting his saloon.

Photographer Bushemi lifted a forkful of creamed potatoes to his mouth, made a sour face and inserted the potatoes as if they were seasoned with liniment. Don Bishop, the public relations reporter who sometimes shows a streak of sheer sanity, lifted his coffee, held his nose and drank it.

"Sergeant Pope," I said in a small voice, "earlier in the course of this supper I told you that I had never tasted anything harder or drier than the bread you served us tonight. I want to take that back, Pope. When I said that, I hadn't tasted your peanut butter."

"You're the only ones I ever hear griping about the chow in this battery," said Pope. "You're the only ones I ever have trouble with. You three and Mulvehill. If I'll pay for your food, won't you please take all your meals at the Service Club?"

"Let's leave Mulvehill's name out of this," I said. "Poor, poor, old Mulvehill. We knew him well. He was a good boy, was the Lieuthomas."

"I noticed the place is so quiet tonight that you can even hear Bushemi eating his celery," said the sergeant. "Where is your dear friend Mulvehill, the bum?"

"You have run him over the hill," said Bishop. "Your food and your mess hall and your brutishly foul mouth have driven him away. He has deserted from the Army and his guilt is upon your hands."

"You know the one thing that's missing from this meal—the one thing that would make it perfect?" asked Bushemi.

"Ice cream?" asked the mess sergeant.

"Chloroform," said Bushemi.

Pope slapped his forehead mightily. "Why couldn't I have been a dud-picker, a horse valet, a suicide submarineman — anything but a mess sergeant? Where is Mulvehill?" He wrinkled his forehead. "Say! He wasn't here at breakfast either."

"Nor lunch," said Bishop. "Nor supper, nor lunch, nor breakfast yesterday."

"He has gone over the hill," I said, gloomily. "He has deserted."

"Let's see," said the sergeant. "He wasn't here all day today and he didn't come in yesterday and he didn't show up for supper the night before last. Is he sick?"

"He would have been," said Bishop, "if he hadn't got a decent meal soon."

"I can remember Mulvehill just like he was right here with us even now," I said. "He was a fine, noble, sensitive lad. He had a beautiful career before him in the Army. Fate can ruin any of us by tossing in the tiniest little monkey wrench—or the toughest little biscuit. I hated to see Mulvehill go over the hill."

"Cut the clowning," the sergeant wailed, convinced at last that Mulvehill had flown. "You can't make me think that he left because of my food. Where is he?"

"That," sighed Bishop, "is what the War Department would like to know."

Pope began drumming unconsciously on the table. "I know my food is as good as any in the Center. That ain't it. Did he take offense at something I said to him and start eating at the Service Club?"

Aston Dennington Hawkins the Third, chief cook, passed by. "Where's your friend Mulvehill?" he asked us.

"Oh," said Bushemi, forgetting the play, "Mulvehill's on furlough."

The mess sergeant rose with a roar. "The day shall come!" he screamed. "You'll all be on KP one of these days! Oh, will you suffer and will I enjoy myself! Finish your supper and get out of my mess hall! Get out! GET OUT!"

"As if I didn't have enough trouble on my hands with pardner," said Top Sergeant Tate, "now I have to be exposed to the sight of you. Be gone!"

"Sergeant," I began, "when I hear people say a soldier can't live on the pay he makes, I'd like to show them myself as a living proof that he can."

"Quit loading your guns," he said, "and get to the point. You didn't come in here to compliment the dining on the pay. And take your cap off when you're in the ordnary room."

"I didn't come to compliment anybody nor nothing," I said, trying my cap on the corner of his desk. "I just came in to see if the War Department is mad at me. They haven't given me a cent of salary since the first of October."

"What in the sweet name of heaven are you talking about?" the top kick hooted, handing me back the cap. "We've had two regular paydays, including the one today. And we've had two supplementary payrolls for people who missed the regular paydays."

"Mind you," I put in, "I'm not complaining. I eat regularly and I have a roof over my head. I can get haircuts and movie tickets and cigarettes and shoe polish on credit, but I certainly would like a little cash spending money from time to time."

"Well," he groaned, slapping his desk wearily, "here we go again, Hargrove, the boy who makes a top kick's life exciting! Hargrove the hopeless—the sloppy bunk on inspection day, the soap in the soup, the thorn in the side. Hargrove, the boy who can take the simplest problem and reduce it to its most confusing form. Now let's start at the beginning and take the whole thing slowly. You haven't been paid since October first. How come?"

"That was because when the November first payday came around, I had just got here. I signed the October payroll in my old battery."

"All right," he said patiently, counting off a finger. "That's one payday. That brings us up to November tenth, the day of the supplementary payroll, when you should have got the pay you missed on the first. Did you sign the supplementary payroll for that occasion?"

"Yes, sir," I insisted. "Then when the supplementary payday came around, something happened. Or to be more correct, nothing happened. I still didn't get paid."

"That's two paydays you missed," the sergeant sighed. "I will check into the second later. Now—what about today's pay?"

"I missed out on that one too. The battery commander couldn't find my signature on the payroll."

He patted me on both shoulders, a little heavily, and I cowered. "Wait just a minute, Private Hargrove," he said sweetly. "Let sargie-wargie see what he can find out about the nasty old payroll."

He returned in a few minutes, frowning wearily. "Private Hargrove," he sighed, "dear Private Hargrove! You didn't draw your pay on the tenth of November because you weren't here on the tenth! You were on furlough! And you didn't sign the payroll for today because you were on furlough while it was being signed. Your modest pay for October has been in the battery safe for three weeks, just waiting for you to get around to picking it up."

"Wait just a minute, Private Hargrove," he said sweetly, "Let sargie-wargie see what he can find out about our nasty payroll."

He took a small envelope from behind his back. "Twenty-one dollars for services rendered through the month of October. Harrumph! Minus two-forty for theater tickets, minus a dollar for haircuts, minus seven dollars for canteen checks. Private Hargrove, I present to you your October wages—ten dollars and sixty cents!"

I took the money, looked at it tenderly, and crammed it into my pocket.

Winter, at last, is upon us, in the rear ranks, the surest indication is to be found in reveille.

All through the late summer and the fall, we hopped out of bed as soon as the whistle blew. Now we crawl grumblingly out when the sergeant puts the whistle to his lips for a "fall out!" blast. Since it is still dark when we stand reveille, and since we are aided occasionally by a heaven-sent fog, there are many saviors of democracy who slip on merely a pair of shoes (partially laced), a pair of trousers, and a field jacket. The field jacket, when buttoned all the way to the collar, hides the absence of shirt and tie—and the sergeant is none the wiser.

In Headquarters Battery, the process of getting up in the morning has sunk into a rut of repetition. It's the same procedure every morning.

Sergeant Roughton, platoon leader, tests his brass at six o'clock and a few energetic soldiers at the other end of the squadroom rise and begin the morning with subdued but cheerful banter. They rank the sorrow of their neighbors. The neighbors yank the covers back on.

Private First Class Bishop, unofficial guardian of the public relations staff, rises from his bunk which is next to mine. "Hargrove! Bushemi! Get up! Salute the morn!" Then he yells down the length of the squadroom to the bed of Private First Class Thomas ("Thoss") Mulvehill.

Mulvehill, every morning, has already been forcibly ejected from his bed by his wild neighbors. He is, by this time, sitting on the edge of his bunk, with his great head sunk between his knees and his fingers fumbling with his shoelaces. In a thick and fiery Irish brogue, he is berating whatever forces of destiny put him in this mad corner of the squadroom.

I stick a cautious toe out from under the covers. The outer air isn't cold but, then again, it isn't warm. I roll over and look at the next bunk, where Private Bushemi is snoring gently. I roll back, get comfortable, and pull the cover over my head.

"Git out of there or I'll dump you out."

"Hargrove!" roars Bishop. "Get your lazy bones out of bed! It's five after six!"

"Call me at ten after six," I mutter. "Better still just sing out when my name is called at reveille."

Private Bishop reaches over suddenly and rips the blankets from the bunk. I rise, cursing him soundly. Private Bushemi is still sleeping, with a sweet and childish smile on his face. I lift a foot and give him a firm shove in the posterior.

"Git out of there, you blankerty-blanked dash-dash, shiftless, good-for-nothing bum!" I shout, giving him two or three more shoves. "Git out of there or I'll dump you out!"

I reach over and grab the edge of Bushemi's bunk. I joggle it slightly to give the impression that I am just about to overturn the bunk. Bushemi bounces out of bed, swinging wildly. "You're going to get funny just one morning too often, and I'm going to beat the eternal perdition out of both of you. It's getting to the point where it ain't funny." Then he begins mumbling aimlessly under his breath as he steps into his trousers.

Somehow, we manage to get into the second shoe just as the whistle blows to call us outside. We shiver in the dark cold as section leaders call the roll, mostly from memory. The second section of the first platoon is always the last to finish roll call. We stand there listening. "P-o-g-g-i!" "Hyoh!" "Pulver!" "Here!" and then the piece de resistence: "Peacock!" Always the answer comes in the same way—an unbelievably deep bass, long-drawn-out and rumbling: "Heeeeeeere!" The second platoon snickers and titters, just as it did the day before, and the top kick shouts, "Dismissed!"

Bushemi heads straight back for his bunk. "Call me at chowtime, will you?"

Bill, a friend of Bushemi's and mine in Charlotte, drives a street bus. Before he began his service as a driver, he served a hitch in the Army. Like all ex-service men, he's ready to drop everything and just shoot the breeze any time the conversation turns to the Army.

"There was a young first-class private got on my bus last week," he told me, "and he sat in the long seat behind me, so we got started talking. Well, I thought I'd snow him under, telling him about the time I was in the Army. So, just to start the ball rolling and get the talk turned to the Army, I asked him how long he'd been in.

" 'Oh, I've been in for well over eight months,' he said, like he was just starting his thirtieth year of service. Then he started wiping his sleeves so I'd be sure to notice his private-first-class stripe.

"I thought I'd let him blow off about his stripe, so I asked him, 'Say, what does that stripe stand for?'

" 'Oh, that,' he said, as much as to say aw-shucks-that-ain't-nothing. That just means I'm a sergeant.'

" 'Is that right?' I asked him, looking sort of widemouthed at him.

" 'Yessir,' he said, real casual, 'in the Army only eight months and I've already been made sergeant.'

" 'Well, tell me,' I said, 'what grade of sergeant are you? I've seen some sergeants have three stripes and then I've seen them have as many as six. How come that?'

AXIS MORALE IS CRACKING

Military reports that have leaked out of Germany in the past two or three weeks indicate quite definitely that Nazi morale is cracking. These reports, through channels which cannot be revealed, were quite definite even before Propaganda Minister Goebbels delivered his give-away speech warning that saboteurs on the home front would be beheaded.

Reports also are definite that the German army no longer has the reserves, no longer has the fighting backbone for a long war. Resentment against Hitler boils beneath the surface in the German army. German soldiers will keep on fighting, and are toughly trained, desperately hitting adversaries. But their heart isn't in it anymore.

All these factors, plus powerful wallops by the Allies, have created an atmosphere in which anything might happen. It is an atmosphere not unlike that which existed in the autumn of 1918. There are those in high places who think the war in Europe might be over anytime this winter, depending entirely on Nazi morale.

But in Asia the war is moving at a snail's pace. In Burma, though the rains are already over, nothing has happened. Many observers think that nothing will happen until late this winter, and that the real drive through Burma toward South China will be reserved for a year from now—the fall of 1944.

WILL ROGERS IN LONDON

Congressman Will Rogers of California, son of the cowboy humorist, came back from London singing the praises of American-British co-operation in England.

American troops, which he described as the new "Army of Occupation," live off the fat of the land and are treated royally by the British. There is nothing too good for them. Only trouble is they occasionally take a girl away from a British Tommy.

Will's father was a frequent visitor in London, and everyone remembered him. So it was like old home week for the young congressman from California.

BRITISH IDLE OIL

Maine's eagle-eyed Senator Brewster met Gen. B. B. Somervell, chief of the army's service forces on the Pacific island of Fiji, immediately tackled him on the dynamite-laden, all-important question of why the U.S.A. was supplying nearly 70 per cent of all Allied oil, though we have only 25 per cent of the world's oil reserves.

"Right around the Persian Gulf," reminded Senator Brewster, "the British have oil refineries and limitless quantities of oil. Why don't we get more oil out of the Near East instead of hauling it all the way from Texas?"

"We are rushing refining equipment to Arabia as quickly as we can," replied General Somervell.

"Yes," countered the senator from Maine, "but why use precious shipping space carting refining equipment half way around the world when the British already have a refinery at the Gulf of Persia. The manager of the Anglo-Persian oil company told us that his refinery could produce 60 per cent more oil. Why not put it to work instead of exhausting our own oil reserves?

"Furthermore," Brewster continued, "the crude oil from Persian wells is so good that it can be pumped right into ships as bunker oil without refining. If we don't get busy and use it, we'll wake up after the war to find the United States with no oil left, and dependent on the British Empire."

CABOOSE SLEEPERS

Cornfed Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado got his start as a railroad telegrapher, still proudly carries a union card. So he was well qualified to preside over the War Mobilization committee when A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, testified on manpower and other railroad problems.

Whitney objected to the policy of some railroads in refusing to let train crews sleep in idle cabooses. Trainmen away from home frequently can't get hotel accommodations, but railroad officials argue that it is unsanitary and also dangerous for them to sleep in "cabs," which sometimes have to be switched.

"When I was a working trainman, we always lived in our cabooses," Whitney said, "not because rooms were not available at hotels, but because it was more convenient."

"Many's the time I have slept in cabooses myself," reminisced Johnson.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

American doughboys in Iran have found a good way to dodge U. S. military police and get out of camp at night. They take advantage of the Mohammedan custom of veiling their women, and slip on a full-length, cover-all veil which Iranian women wear from head to toe. Military police have been instructed to protect Iranian women and prevent all flirting, so they don't dare stop a veiled figure to ask her (or him) to lower the veil, and see whether an American doughboy is behind it.

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON ABSTINENCE

(International Temperance Sunday)

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 10:1, 2, 8-11; Proverbs 31:4, 5; Luke 1:13-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink.—Judges 13:4.

Total abstinence from all alcoholic liquors is the only sensible and effective policy for Christian people. Some, who want to use alcohol themselves, like to stress the Bible's teaching of temperance. They point to the use of wine on the part of people in biblical times, although they fail to note that more often than not it was non-alcoholic. (See "The Bible and Wine," published by Loizeaux Brothers.)

Another thing they ignore is that we live in a different day with a mechanized society, when alcoholic beverages are offered through high pressure advertising and in highly distilled and potent form.

What we are most interested in is what the Bible teaches about the matter. We note that—

Abstinence is Necessary

I. For Spiritual Obedience (Lev. 10:1-2, 8-11).

In the religious life of a nation one expects the leaders to set the example for the people to follow. Two things we may rightly demand of those who serve the nation in its religious life: (1) a vision of God and obedience to that vision in life and service, and (2) the exercise of sound, God-guided judgment in the affairs of the people.

But note what happens when the prophet and the priest turn to wine and strong drink. They err in vision (Isa. 28:7). That is, they have no clear concepts of divine truth, and lead the people into error. Further, we see that "they stumble in judgment."

To every true servant of God comes repeatedly the opportunity and the need of rendering judgment, that is, of advising and counseling those to whom he ministers. If his mind is befuddled by the use of alcohol (or, for that matter, by any other kind of worldly indulgence) he will "stumble," and cause his people to stumble.

A sad incident is related in Leviticus 10:1, 2, of the sons of Aaron. We are not told directly that they were intoxicated, but it is implied in the fact that there is an immediate injunction against the use of wine by the priests (Lev. 10:8-11).

II. For National Order (Prov. 31:4, 5).

It is a notorious fact that the liquor interests strongly influence the political life of a nation. (See "The Wrecking of the 18th Amendment," by Ernest Gordon.)

While political leaders may make sanctimonious protestation that government agencies are not influenced by the liquor interests, it is common knowledge even to those who are slightly informed that the two are closely associated.

The result of that unholy alliance is rightly described in Proverbs 31:5—"They . . . forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted." Much of the sad disorder in the body politic is traceable directly to the door of the makers and sellers of alcoholic beverages.

It is a depressing and disturbing thing when the leaders of a nation are known to lean on alcoholic stimulants—the broken reed on which man can only be pierced. The destructive influence of their example can be imagined.

III. For Personal Usefulness (Luke 11:13-16).

John was to be born into a life of such blessed usefulness to God and man that he was to be a "joy and gladness" to his parents, "great in the sight of the Lord," and instrumental in turning "many of the children of Israel . . . to the Lord."

Such a life is worthy of emulation on the part of every young man and woman. What is the secret of it? Undoubtedly, fine Christian parentage had much to do with it.

Other elements also entered in, such as rearing and training, but of great importance was the fact (v. 15) that he was not to be driven by the false stimulants of this world, but by the infilling of the Holy Spirit of God. No "wine nor strong drink," but being "filled with the Holy Ghost"—there, young people, is the secret of a happy and useful life.

Note that John was to be "great in the sight of the Lord" (v. 15)—nothing finer or more distinctive could be said about a man. That greatness simply could not exist along with indulgence in "wine nor strong drink." Being filled with the Spirit precludes the use of intoxicants.

Let us bear that in mind when we are tempted to be led astray by the smooth arguments of those who talk "temperance" as a ground for indulgence. Our boys and girls—yes, our men and women—need a constant warning against the evils of alcoholic liquor. (See Alcohol, a Deceiver, Depraver and Destroyer, published by Moody Press, Chicago.)

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To sprinkle clothes for ironing, use a clean whisk broom or a bottle with a perforated top.

When your shoes are wet, crumple newspaper and pack in the shoes. This will absorb the moisture and also help keep the shoes in shape. Do not place too near the fire.

Spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, rice, are high in carbohydrates and should be counted with the cereals and breads, not as vegetables, when planning and balancing your menus.

When removing spent plants from the garden, as you clean up your garden for winter, put discarded plants, leaves, grass rakings and clippings, and other similar vegetation in a wire enclosure to make your compost pile. You can also add carrot tops, outer cabbage leaves, potato peelings and other vegetable trimmings from the kitchen garbage.

TO YOUR Good Health by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

PSORIASIS

A patient consulted a skin specialist about a chronic case of psoriasis. Psoriasis is an inflammation of the skin in which there are red raised spots covered with dry silvery scales. When the scales are removed a red glistening surface is exposed with fine bleeding points.

Dr. Barton

"It occurs in all countries, in both sexes, in the young and the old. It is not contagious or infectious but does seem to run in some families."

It heals without forming blisters or leaving a scar. Although no pain or other symptom is present, it causes much distress and embarrassment.

The patient told the skin specialist that he had "tried everything," including physicians' prescription and the patent remedies but could obtain no permanent cure. Before he underwent treatment he wanted to know if the specialist could cure him.

The specialist frankly told him that he knew of no "permanent" cure for psoriasis but many of his patients obtained relief for months and years by two simple acts. They got out into the air and sunshine as much as possible and avoided entirely or greatly reduced the amount of fat foods eaten. The very fact that the face and back of hands are seldom attacked by psoriasis would show that sunlight is a factor in preventing psoriasis. In fact some of his patients gave up his and other treatment, the psoriasis disappeared for months or years, and then returned. It is possible that in some of these cases "that cured themselves," the patients got outdoors more, ate less fat foods, and more vegetables and fruits containing vitamins A, C, and D. In others cutting down on fat foods and taking vitamin B1 has given relief.

In Hygeia, the Health Magazine, Maurice J. Costello states that natural sunlight, particularly when combined with salt water bathing, is the most pleasant and convenient and one of the best forms of treatment for chronic psoriasis. Suntanning the body is both a temporary cure and a preventive of psoriasis. X-ray treatment is often effective but should be used sparingly under the supervision of a physician X-ray specialist.

The point is that while chronic psoriasis can be helped for periods of time by official and non-official preparations, sunlight and cutting down on fat foods give best results.

Emotional Spasms Prevent Swallowing

Some years ago I spoke about a middle-aged woman who had suffered for years with an arthritis that kept her almost bedridden. She began to complain that her food stuck "half way down" the esophagus, the tube carrying the food to the stomach; she was sure that a growth was blocking the tube. Her physician pointed out that if there was a growth or obstruction present, it would block the food every time she ate solid food whereas there were times when she ate solid food without feeling any block in the tube. In order to convince her he took her to the X-ray department of a large hospital and by the aid of a fluoroscope and mirror she was able to see food pass directly from throat down the tube to the stomach without any delay whatever.

There was no question but that she felt the delay must have been present at times but only because there was a spasm of the tube, not any real obstruction present. The cause of the spasm was emotional.

In Radiology, Drs. W. B. Faulkner, F. H. Rodenbaugh and John R. O'Neill show that emotional upsetments may produce a disturbance in the esophagus which can be discovered by the X-rays and by the use of the esophagoscope (instrument showing condition of esophagus). They noticed this first in a routine fluoroscopic (Xrays) examination of patient with a severe spasm of esophagus. The spasm, clearly seen, disappeared when a chance statement was made that pleased the patient while a statement that displeased the patient brought on the spasm again.

It can thus be seen that if a barium meal is given when the patient is upset or nervous a spasm may occur which causes a "blocked" feeling, whereas if patient is relaxed there will be no blocked feeling.

GREENBANK NEWS

BUTTERBAUGH FUNERAL

Funeral rites for McKinley Butterbaugh, 42, a veteran of the first World War and son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Butterbaugh of near Green Bank, were held at the home in Morgantown, at 2 p. m., Friday, with the Rev. Arthur E. Beckett officiating. Burial was in the Beverly Hills Memorial Park.

Mr. Butterbaugh had resided in Morgantown for the past 15 years, and was a member of the post of Veterans of Foreign Wars, having served over seas eleven months in the first World War. He died at the Veterans hospital, Bronx, N. Y. He was well and favorably known in the Green Bank community.

Surviving, besides his parents, are his widow, Mrs. Ellen Brock Butterbaugh, a son, Lester, of Jacksonville, Fla., three daughters, Mrs. Lyle Haines and Misses Ruth and Norma Butterbaugh of Morgantown; four sisters, Mrs. Volley Ray, Mrs. Lily Dean and Mrs. I. Sharp of Green Bank, and Mrs. Ola Wooddell of Meadville, Pa.; three brothers, Gilbert, of Mt. Morris, Pa.; Jake, of Detroit, Mich., and George, of Durbin, and two grand-children.

Mrs. Howard Wooddell of Meadville, Pa.; Jake Butterbaugh and sons, Ralph and Kenneth, of Detroit, Mich., and Lester Butterbaugh, of Jacksonville, Fla., have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Butterbaugh.

Mrs. Alex Butterbaugh, Mr. and Mrs. Icie Sharp have returned from Morgantown, where they attended the funeral of their son and brother. Mr. Butterbaugh is ill and was unable to attend his son's funeral.

Corp. Robert Wooddell who is stationed in Arkansas, is spending a week's furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oda Wooddell.

Randolph Bledsoe, who was formerly employed by the West Penn,and who has been in the army for a year, was visiting friends here recently.

Mrs. Ira Sheets and daughter, Mary Katherine, of Meadville, Pa., visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lewis Taylor, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor of Covington, Va., were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Taylor.

Mr. aand Mrs. Lynn Dolly were week-end guests at the Milton Dolly home in Pendleton county.

Lieut. Steryl Brown of the U. S. Marines, spent the week-end at his home. He was accompanied to Staunton on Sunday by his sisters, Misses Mary, Mildred and Louise Brown, and David Smith.

Attending the funeral of Mrs. Lyda Renick Dickson at Second Creek on Wednesday, were Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah, Mrs. John Hannah and Mrs. L. C. McCutcheon. Mrs. Dickson is a cousin of the Hannahs and has visited often in this community, where she had many friends. She is the mother of Edgar Dickson, who was secretary to former Governor Kump. The funeral was held at the Dickson homestead at Second Creek.

Mrs. Clark McCutcheon and Miss Margaret Lightner were shopping in Marlinton, Saturday.

That's the spirit behind Your Ration Board

Those are good neighbors of yours down at the local War Price and Rationing Board. Every day they do a job that has to be done — a war job. It takes patience and long hours. But they're glad to do it. They're proud to serve — without pay.

That's democracy at work!

It's a tough job your neighbors have taken on. Your applications, your stamps and coupons, your price control questions — mean endless detail and care. They treat your problems as if they were their own. Extra shoes for a fast-growing daughter — tires and gas for a newcomer in town — more sugar for Mrs. Jones' home canning . . .

They try to be fair with everyone. And when they have to turn someone down — well, it isn't easy. Everyone's a friend or neighbor!

But they know they're serving their country as well as their community. And every now and then you make their work lighter — when you turn to them and say, "Thanks, neighbor."

CASS NEWS

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

Marshall Shinaberry was the leader of the Young People's League at the Cass Methodist church last Sunday night. The prelude, "Are Ye Able, Said The Master," was played by Bertha Lee Dill. Maxine Fisher gave a talk, "Make the Best of Your Talents." Then the song, "Are Ye Able, Said The Master," was sung by the congregation. Following this came a talk by Marie Dill, "Tithing." The song, "I am Thine, O Lord," was then sung. Ted Shinaberry gave a talk, "The Best of Our Lives." Another song, "I'll Live For Him," was sung. Following this came a short play, "Flowers,," given by Bertha Lee Dill and Maxine Shinaberry. At the end of the play, the choir sang "Give of Your Best to the Master." Then the congregation repeated the Lord's prayer together. Maxine Fisher then made the announcements and the league was dismissed by repeating the league benediction.

Swago Farm Club Meets at McNeill's

The Swago Farm Women's Club met with Mrs. Eleanor McNeill, Friday night at 8, with 15 members and six visitors present.

Mrs. W. J. Yeager led the devotional, which opened with the song, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," followed by Scripture and a lovely poem, "Autumn Days." A talk on Present Day Living was given by Mrs. Yeager and closed with prayer.

Miss Madalyn McNeill, president, conducted the business session, which was mainly taken up with completing of committee reports preparatory to the Annual County Farm Women's Achievement Day program, to be held in Marlinton, Nov. 13. All project work was completed by 25 members which was mostly on food conservation, gardening, canning and poultry.

All members subscribed to the National War Fund and the club also gave $1.00 as well as $1.00 each to the China Relief Fund and the local 4-H club.

Mrs. W. H. Rogers reported the hours credit given to the club for garments sewed or knitted this year.

The club lesson, "Care and Repair of Clothing," was led by Mrs. Eleanor McNeill. A demonstration on made over clothing was given by Mrs. Edna Kellison, which was very interesting. A discussion showed that many old garments had been remodeled and made over into new ones during the year.

Many interesting facts were brought out in the lesson on how to conserve the clothing we already have.

Old materials are found to be superior in quality; better dyes, less skimpy in quality and present a nicer appearance if kept well pressed and cared for.

We adjourned after Mrs. McNeill read the club paper, "Swago Chatterbox," to meet with Mrs. Fred Loudermilk, Nov. 19.

Delicious pumpkin pie was served by the hostess.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Muddy Terrain Slows Drive in Italy As Nazis Strengthen Mountain Posts; Germany Rushes Troops to Bolster Broken Defense Lines on Red Front

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Marines are shown hauling 155 mm. rifle through mud to new position on tropical Rendova island in the central Solomons. Known as "Long Toms," these 155 mm. field pieces soon went to work to hurl shells into Jap posts seven miles away.

ITALY:
New Difficulties

To add to the Allies' difficulties in Italy, heavy rain has slogged the countryside, and new burdens have been imposed on the lines of communication bringing supplies to the front.

Because of the inability of motor vehicles to operate over the muddy and mountainous terrain, the Allies are relying increasingly on horses, burros and mules. But they are finding it hard to obtain them since the Germans took most of these animals out of southern Italy or shot those they could not take, and the Fighting French have been unwilling to give up the horses, etc., they have in North Africa for fear of breaking up their mounted units.

Encouraged by Allied difficulties, Nazi Marshal Kesselring reportedly has reinforced his army fighting a dogged delaying action in the rugged country. After retreating from the Volturno river line, the Germans took up positions on the 2,500-foot-high Massico ridge, where they were expected to make another stand before dropping back to the mountains farther north.

Try to Maintain Morale

On October 17, 1918, Germany's General Eric Ludendorff declared: "The tension of the individual man has reached a degree which cannot be increased."

Not long after Germany cracked under the strain, and steely, dynamic General Ludendorff fell apart with the rest. Today, Germany's Hitler, Goebbels and Goering remember 1918, and the Nazis are working feverishly to hold up the people's morale against the Allies' shattering air attacks.

Hitler has ordered the construction of underground concrete hospitals in battle zones, as well as first aid posts and auxiliary hospitals in the cellars of the most solid buildings. Newspapers are carrying on a concerted campaign to educate the people in treatment of eye injuries caused by the heat, smoke, dust, glass-splinters and phosphorus clouds generated by bombing raids.

HOME FRONT:
FDR Meets Labor Leaders

Answering labor's complaint against the stabilization of wages in the face of 5 per cent increase in the cost of living since last year, President Roosevelt promised AFL and CIO leaders that the retail prices would be rolled back through producers' or processors' subsidies.

FDR met with the labor leaders even as there were rumblings of discontent among the railway unions over wage raises. The non-operating railway union was kicking because Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson had set aside an eight-cents-an-hour pay boost recommended by a government mediation board, while the operating railway unions claimed they were "insulted" by another mediation panel's award of a four-cents-an-hour increase after they had asked for three dollars a day.

In hearings before the War Labor board, railroads and anthracite coal operators objected to a new contract between Illinois operators and the United Mine Workers, which would boost daily wages between $1.30 and $1.70 by increasing the working day to six hours, including all travel time to and from the pits.

RUSSIA:
Nazis' 'Darkest Hour'

As Russian troops poured across the Dnieper river and promised to trap 1,000,000 German soldiers from the rear, word came from Berlin that the Nazis admitted they faced their darkest hour.

Upon the shoulders of Hitler's army fell the gigantic task of blunting the Russian drive before it could roll southward across the southern Ukraine's broad plains and trap the Germans from behind while they held the line against other Red forces attacking from the front.

As the German lines sagged, the Nazis were reported rushing thousands of troops from the Crimea, immediately to the south. In Melitopol, German and Russian soldiers fought in the streets of the ruined city, with enemy machine gunners operating from charred buildings to delay the Reds' advance.

Both sides sustained heavy losses in men and materiel.

Big Three Meet

Behind the high walls of Russia's forbidding Kremlin, U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov started conferences designed to bring their countries closer together in the military, political and economic fields.

(Top to bottom) Hull, Eden, Molotov

While Molotov was expected to raise the issue of the U. S. and Britain opening a second front in western Europe to draw off some of the 200 German divisions facing Russia in the east, it was said Hull and Eden would attempt to persuade the Reds to reconsider their demands for postwar annexation of the Baltic states and parts of Poland, Rumania and Finland.

As the conferees met, it was announced the U. S., Britain and Canada had entered into a new lend-lease agreement with Russia, promising her additional food and military supplies this winter.

48-HOUR WEEK:
For More Production

To meet the demand for record production, the War Manpower commission ordered 71 different areas to go on a 48 hour week, and advised 113 others to prepare to shift to the longer work period.

To make up for the shortage of manpower, the WMC determined on the 48 hour week to get more production per person. Previously, the 48 hour week had been in effect in 69 out of 71 areas where the WMC had declared a labor scarcity existed. Now, the remaining 31 areas must go on the longer week.

In the other 113 areas, the WMC saw the possibility of a labor shortage. If such a shortage impends, preparations will be made to meet it before it occurs to interfere with production.

The 48-hour week already has been instituted in such industries as logging, non-ferrous mining and smelting, and iron and steel.

Ellis Arnall

Accustomed to returning to darkened cells, incorrigibles of Georgia's state prison were surprised to find their quarters ablaze with light one night and radios available.

The changes were in line with Governor Ellis Arnall's sweeping prison reform, marked by legislative action to ban whipping and shackles, and liquidation of the dreaded chain gang camps.

When 93-year-old Civil war vet Frank M. Frary died in Denver, Colo., recently, it was discovered that he had been carrying $81,610 in his vest pocket for the last two years.

A retired conductor from the Burlington railroad, Frary had converted securities into cash two years ago, and kept the money wrapped in brown paper in his vest pocket up to his death. Twenty-six relatives share in his estate.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Japs Build Air Bases

While they are slowly being squeezed out of the Solomons and central New Guinea, the Japanese are feverishly constructing a string of bomber and fighter bases on the Celebes islands and the Dutch East Indies to the west.

Reconnaissance by Allied planes reveals that the Japs have laid many new concrete runways in these territories, and are laying up stores of supplies in warehouses spread around these air centers.

Apparent purpose of these air bases is to thwart any move General MacArthur might make against the rich oil, quinine and tin lands of the Indies from Australia to the east, or Lord Mountbatten might make from India to the north.

WORLD WAR II:
Toughest Yet

Japan is building more planes than we are destroying, and she has not as yet called all of her eligible draftees or young men between the ages of 17 and 20, U. S. military experts told congressmen in secret session.

Because the Japs have 500,000 soldiers massed within striking distance, the Allies would be confronted with difficult problems of defense in case Russia granted the U. S. bombing bases in Siberia, the congressmen were told.

The military experts declared that the Germans were concentrating their fighter planes on breaking up Allied bombing formations, and that, in many cases, the German pilots were purposely colliding with our big sky fortresses.

GOLD:
U. S. Holds Two-thirds

Of the world's gold supply of 33 billion dollars, the U. S. holds 22 billion dollars, or two-thirds, while the British Empire controls almost four billion dollars.

Of the remaining gold supply, over four billion dollars is in the hands of Germany and Japan as a result of their conquests. Germany itself possesses no more than 29 million dollars of gold, while Japan has 164 million dollars. South American gold stocks approximate one billion dollars.

Interest in the gold supply heightened with indications that the U. S. and Britain intended to make the precious metal the basis for world currency after the war, with the value of all money being founded upon the gold reserve behind it.

SCHOOL BILL:
Killed in Senate

Following adoption of an amendment by Senator William Langer (N. D.) against racial discrimination in the use of funds, the senate killed the 300 million dollar public education bill.

Senator William Langer

Under terms of the bill, states would have received 200 million dollars in federal funds for school uses during the war, and 100 million dollars in additional permanent grants. Major portions of the money would have gone toward increasing teachers' salaries.

In introducing his amendment, Senator Langer said some states would not apportion the money equitably for the benefit of all races. Despite Senator Langer's assertion, the Negro teachers' association and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Children supported the bill.

BUTTER

A new butter extender called "Dyna" has been developed by the dairy department of the University of Wisconsin. It will be on the market shortly, says Dr. K. G. Weckel of the college of agriculture.

"While the product is not a substitute for butter," he explains, "it is expected that it will ease the demand for butter and encourage production."

It is made wholly of dairy products, and is of the consistency of cream cheese.

Washington Digest

Battle Tides to Influence 1944 Political Campaign

Close Observers Change Minds, Express Belief President Will Not Be Candidate if War Ends by Spring.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

As the political campaign, which will be over in a short year, begins to increase in tempo, it is interesting to note that noticeable shock recorded by the reporters at a recent White House press and radio conference when the President tossed off that phrase "when I am out of the White House."

Taken in the context, it was immediately clear that the President did not delimit the time element in this statement and there was no real justification for the startled pause when pencils stopped scribbling and heads and eyebrows went up at the presidential remark. Mr. Roosevelt was merely pointing out, in connection with the postwar rubber situation, that he believed that any proposed tariff to protect the synthetic rubber plants after the war should be vetoed, and he implied that any President who vetoed such a measure might stir up a lot of opposition from the synthetic rubber manufacturers.

But we have become so accustomed to the idea that Mr. Roosevelt himself thinks only in terms of his own regime without time or other limitations, that an expression which seemed to indicate the opposite naturally caused a stir.

However, it is entirely possible that Mr. Roosevelt will not be a candidate in 1944. There are even those who enjoy making rash prophecies who are already saying he has made up his mind not to run at all under any circumstances. This type of prediction is accepted in Washington as being in that class of guesses which have about a 40-60 chance of being right.

But closer observers who do not choose to guess the President's inner thoughts but are thoroughly familiar with his manner of thinking, deduce, from what they believe is past experience, that he will not be a candidate if the war is over by next spring. This is contrary to earlier prognostications that his desire to be President when the blue-prints for the postwar world are being drawn would incline him toward running for a fourth term. The explanation is that he will not run unless he has more than an even chance of winning.

End of Conflict

Although none of the army or navy officers of the top command will allow themselves to be quoted as saying the war will end early in 1944, a number of bolder and less constrained military folk are willing to say this is possible.

It is interesting to consider that a year ago this summer, when many believed that invasion of northern Europe by the Allies would be undertaken by the spring of 1943, few people were predicting, even under such circumstances, an end of the war early in 1944. Take for instance a typical comment in a leading periodical (Harper's) written very little over a year ago in which it was said that Germany must complete the conquest of key positions in Russia, must halt or control the Anglo-American onslaught from the air, and must hold northern Africa for a sortie in the Middle East. When we consider what has happened since, we can see the progress which has been made. Far from any action in which the word "conquest" could be used, the Wehrmacht in Russia has been driven beyond its last Russian defense lines in many places. The dream of an African empire has become the reality of bitter defeat and despite desperate defense measures, the most powerful air blows are being struck against the Reich.

Japanese Situation

Within the year, Japan's power has begun to crumble at a rate and in a manner which makes it plain that she will not have to be beaten back island by island and every Jap on foreign soil killed. The Mikado's "unconquerables" have become exceedingly adept at getting away from points once expected to be last stands, with remarkable alacrity and apparent satisfaction in their own retreatability.

Therefore, it is not at all impossible that the President, if he intends voluntarily to retire with the end of the fighting, means that he will be "out of the White House" at his own behest, before the ides of November, '44.

This situation, if it does arise, imposes an interesting problem for the Democrats. It is pretty generally agreed that the conservative element in the Democratic party has been gaining in power in the last months when the President bestowed positions of key importance on the right wing of the party while many New Dealers faded into the background.

When Vice President Wallace, whom it was taken for granted would be the President's choice as a successor, was dropped and his activities placed in the more conservative hands of Messrs. Hull, Crowley, et al., it was plain that the original New Dealers were being relegated to the rear of the hall.

GOP Attitude

And while the burning highlights of the administration portrait are being toned down to more sober hues, the Republicans seem to be outdoing themselves in an effort to show that they can make use of the bright lexicon of youth as a reference work and select from it promising shibboleths who speak of action rather than reaction.

Of course, Mr. Willkie does not speak for the Republican party but he has a following which his supporters hope will be reinforced by disgruntled former New Dealers as well as others whose leanings, although they have never been such that they could wholeheartedly support a Democratic regime, are still far enough left to demand the most progressive candidate offered under any other respectable banner.

Meanwhile, of course, the President must, according to the inviolable principles of politics, show no signs of intending to withdraw, since it is written that you can't control your party unless there is a fair chance that you are going to continue to be its active head.

Our political campaign of 1944 is bound to be affected by the tide of battle abroad.

General Arnold Explains

On a mild day, with the Virginia countryside warm in the glow of autumn, and the Potomac sparkling in the sunlight, some 50 newsmen—correspondents, columnists, radio commentators—climbed up the wide stone steps of the river entrance to the famous Pentagon building.

General Arnold, chief of America's army air forces, took his seat and began to talk. The gist of his words you have read. What he felt can only be guessed but he was faced with the proposition of "explaining the obvious" and he seemed just a little weary at the prospect. Arnold is a pleasant but blunt-spoken fighting man with wings and service ribbons won in service.

A few days before, he happened to listen to a commentator who was computing in dollars and lives and material the cost of the bombing raid of the great ball-bearing factory in Schweinfurt, Germany.

The general was exceedingly irked. What the commentator did not perhaps realize was the number of endless explanations of "the obvious" which General Arnold has had to make since we entered the war. And if Germany does crumble because her war effort is smashed, it will be Arnold's explanations as well as the bombs themselves that ought to get the credit.

If he had not been able to "explain" that American bombers could fly in sufficient numbers into the heart of Germany in the light of day and hit a target with the precision to destroy it, we would never have a chance to prove it could be done. There were few in high places either here or in Britain who believed such an absurd, untried thing was practical. But he had his chance and proved his thesis. Then, when the experts were convinced, when he was beginning to swing into action, the public began to exclaim at the cost of his raids. That must have been hard to take.

And so he sat for an hour reeling off figures, recounting details which will never be printed until peace comes and, most effective of all for the layman, showing the greatly enlarged photographs of the destruction these great daylight precision raids accomplished.

Best-Known For Externally Relieving Miseries of Baby's Colds

Mothers, when a young child catches cold—be modern—and relieve distress without dosing, without upsetting the stomach. At bedtime rub Vicks VapoRub on the throat, chest and back. It is what most young mothers do because VapoRub works direct two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours to bring relief—to ease coughing—relieve muscular soreness or tightness—and invite restful, comforting sleep. Often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone! Try it tonight.

When you see how VapoRub relieves distress of children's colds you should understand why it is the best-known home remedy of its kind in the world. It's just as good for grown-ups, too. Time-tested VICKS VAPORUB

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

To maintain the nation's essential motor transportation system, the American rubber tire industry will be called upon to make 20 million synthetic passenger car tires in 1944. The synthetic rubber program is being geared to permit such an output without hindering the military needs for rubber.

More than 65 per cent of the war materials reaching factories in Belgium travel on rubber-tired trucks, and 67 per cent of the finished products move out by truck. Proof that our national economy is closely bound with rubber.

SLEEPING CARS AND GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

AS A WAR emergency measure the government has gone into the business of providing sleeping cars. To supply additional sleeping car accommodations it is financing a new fleet of specially designed cars that will be leased to, and operated by, the Pullman company for the period of the war, used for the transportation of men of the army, of whom an average of 30,000 are on the road from somewhere to somewhere else every night.

They are to be of a new type, patterned on the lines of the continental European lounge cars for day travel, with seats only on one side. At night these seats will be the lower of three tiers of berths and passengers will sleep crosswise instead of lengthwise, of the car.

Let us hope they may not long be needed for soldier travel, and when no longer needed for that the government will get out of the sleeping car business.

This is not the first time the government has financed the building of railroad trains for war purposes. In 1918, Col. Henry M. Bylesby, then the purchasing agent in England for the American army, contracted for the construction of five complete hospital trains to be operated in France. The trains were only partially completed when the Armistice was signed on November 11. Bylesby was the type of business man who does not hesitate, but does things quickly. I was in his London office on November 12 when he was in session with the contractor for those trains. Bylesby asked that the contractor figure the value to himself, for other purposes, of the material he had purchased that was as yet unused, the value to himself of such portion of the job as had been completed, and to name a price for the surrender of the contract.

Three weeks later, I met Colonel Bylesby on a train bound from New York to Chicago. The United States government was out of the business of building and operating hospital trains as well as many other lines in which we had made extensive contracts in England. All such contracts had been settled within two weeks. The nation was out with a very much lower percentage of loss than was to prove true with our transportation and other ventures in France, where we sold to the French government at a very small portion of our investment cost, and then did not collect.

May there be another Colonel Bylesby around to dispose of our sleeping car investment when the cars are no longer needed to transport our soldiers. It is much better that we buy our Pullman accommodations from Pullman than from the United States government.

HOMETOWN PAPERS AND WAR BONDS

THE INFLUENCE AND VALUE of the country press in America has been demonstrated by the effect of the underwritten advertising carried in its columns on the sale of war bonds.

The idea of such advertising started in 1917, just before the second loan to finance World War I. I was familiar with the operation at that time as I had proposed the idea and presented it to the treasury department. It took some considerable effort to put it over until I reached the then secretary of the treasury, Carter Glass. As the publisher of a small city daily, a typical hometown paper, he saw the possibilities and gave the idea his unqualified approval. Through such advertising the sale of war bonds in rural communities was multiplied as compared with the results on the first loan, a result Secretary Glass attributed to the influence of the hometown newspapers.

To a considerable extent the thing that did the job was the names of the sponsors. That was especially true when those names included the chamber, the lodges, service clubs and other local organizations as well as the business people. Those names represented a recommendation on the part of local people.

In a letter received from Secretary Glass after the successful completion of the Victory loan he said in effect one factor had contributed as much to the financing of the war. More than 500,000 pages of such advertising had been printed, and that record has been surpassed by the amount of underwritten advertising carried by home-town papers during World War II. That is what a free press can do, and has done, for the nation.

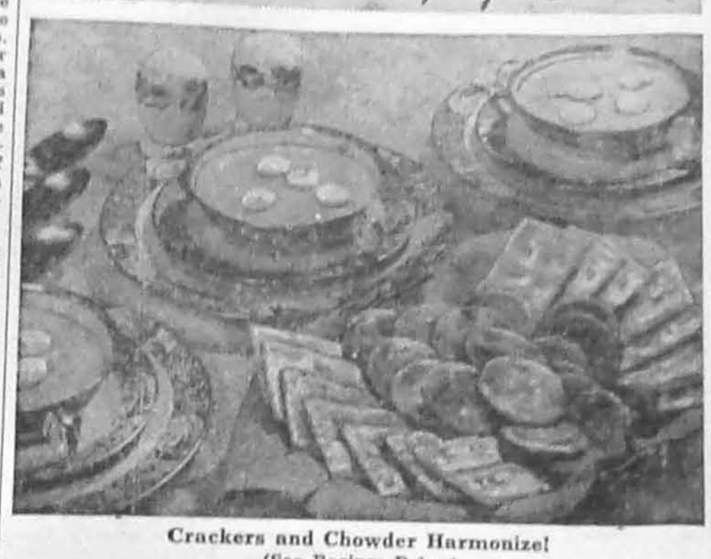
HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers



Crackers and Chowder Harmonize!
(See Recipes Below)

Soup Satisfies!

There's not one dish in any cooking repertory that can even come close to fill the place of soup. It can be the appetite - tickler to start the meal, or a light, inspired concoction to do for luncheon, or a steaming hot, sturdy soup to be the meat, the vegetable and the main dish for a cool night's dinner while the wind blows hard outside.

If any crisis arises as far as your own point - ration allowance, then start exploring the fascinating possibilities of a few meaty bones, celery leaves, pungent onion, and a spray of parsley, chives, marjoram or chevril. Fat, cozy tureens of soup will ward off any hunger now as they have always done when food supplies are slender.

There's no doubt that the tureen will again become a part of your kitchen equipment—at least for the duration. You can make delicious soup out of almost anything—and soup can make the meal if you serve it with plenty of unrationed crackers. There are literally all kinds of these to go with any soup you care to name.

Here's a fish chowder that is rich, savory and thoroughly satisfying. Serve it with common or pilot crackers to make the meal. Or, if you prefer, oyster crackers, the round tasty type, saltines or plain soda crackers—any one will be a natural accompaniment:

Fish Chowder.
(Serves 8)

3 pounds haddock or cod
3 potatoes, sliced
3 medium-sized onions, chopped
3 slices salt pork, diced
8 crackers
1 quart milk
1 pint cream
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Salt and pepper

Cook fish in boiling water until done. Remove fish from water and cook potatoes and onions in fish water until soft. Fry salt pork until crisp. Skin and bone fish and add with pork scraps, to chowder. Soak split crackers in milk. Heat milk and cream with crackers, and add to chowder. Add butter or margarine, salt and pepper.

Here is another savory soup which will make a perfect main dish for the meal:

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Now that butter has gone up in point value, you may have to learn to use other spreads such as margarine. Be sure to select a margarine that gives you a definite guarantee of the amount of vitamin with which it is enriched. To color the margarine, let it soften until smooth and creamy, add vegetable coloring and blend together. Let harden before using, if you want to cut it in squares.

Butter can also be stretched with a number of commercial or other stretchers. Select a stretcher that gives good consistency and does not change flavor.

If you're doing without a great deal of butter, here's how: Use margarines or shortenings for all cooking or baking. Save bacon and other drippings to use for frying. Occasionally, use jams, jelly and honey for spreads. Sandwiches can be served with mayonnaise if the butter supply is low.

Scotch Broth.
(Serves 16)

⅔ cup dried barley
⅔ cup green, split peas
½ pound lamb shank
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts water
2 leeks or onions, chopped
2 carrots, diced small
1 turnip, diced small
1 pound cabbage, sliced
4 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
1 carrot, grated

Soak peas and barley overnight, in separate bowls. Place lamb flank in a large saucepan; add salt and cold water to cover. Bring to a boil and simmer 1 hour. Add leeks, carrots, turnip, cabbage, peas and barley. Simmer 1 hour. Add parsley and grated carrot. Stir well and serve.

Potatoes and onion are go-togethers in soup. Carry the harmony even further and serve with the soup, the round, toasty type of cracker:

Cream of Potato and Onion Soup.
(Serves 6)

4 onions
4 medium-sized potatoes
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups scalded milk
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Salt and pepper

Boil onions and potatoes together until tender. Drain, saving 1 cup of the water. Rub the vegetables through a coarse strainer. Melt the butter or margarine, add flour and blend until smooth. Add milk and potato-onion water, and combine with onion and potato pulp. Season with chopped parsley, salt and pepper. Beat with egg beater and serve at once.

Did you know that a cheese type of cracker is best with the tomato soups? It brings out the flavor of the soup better than any other kind of accompaniment:

Tomato Bisque.
(Serves 6)

4 cups milk
¾ cup stale bread crumbs
2½ cups canned tomatoes
1 small onion
6 cloves
½ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons sugar
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

Pour the scalded milk over the bread crumbs and rub through a sieve. Stew the tomatoes with the seasonings and strain. To the tomatoes, in which the soda has been dissolved, add the reheated milk mixture, and last the sugar and butter mixture. Serve at once.

A delicious bean soup has been many a cook's road to fame. It's not difficult at all if you make it this way:

Black Bean Soup.
(Serves 12)

1 pound black beans
2 cloves
2 sprigs thyme or 1 bayleaf
3 quarts water
1 onion, chopped
1 ham bone or ½ pound salt pork or
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
Dash of salt

Soak beans overnight in cold water. Rinse and drain beans well. Place in kettle with rest of ingredients. Bring to a boil and let simmer 4 hours. Add more water from time to time, if necessary. Put through sieve and serve with slice of lemon and sliced hard-cooked egg.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

MAGNETIC TORPEDO:

Here is one reason why we needed the Azores so badly as an anti-submarine base. The U-boats not only have new devices but also a new strategy and may converge around the bottleneck to the Mediterranean between the Azores and Gibraltar.

DEVICES:

Latest Nazi torpedoes are superior to the former type which exploded only on contact. New torpedoes are exploded (1) on contact; (2) by magnetic attraction on coming close to the steel hull; (3) by the vibration of the engines of the ship under attack. This makes it possible for the submarine to succeed in its mission much more frequently than before. A torpedo is much less likely to miss, since missing actual contact with the target does not now mean, as previously, that it misses the target.

STRATEGY:

Convoys have now discovered that Nazi subs are hunting in packs of sufficient number to employ the same sort of naval strategy which large units of naval vessels are able to use. A group of submarines will surface on one side of the convoy, and thus decoy the escort vessels in that direction. Meantime, another group of submarines on the other side of the convoy will approach within easy firing range and discharge their torpedoes.

Observers believe, however, that the main artery of commerce from the United States to the European theater of war—the North Atlantic run—is still so well guarded that the submarine menace is licked so far as that run is concerned. It is feared, however, that the Nazis will now strike at another vulnerable point, namely, the Straits of Gibraltar. Since these straits must be passed by all Allied merchant shipping supplying the Mediterranean theater of war, including North Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica, Italy and the Adriatic—not to mention all the shipping now passing through the Mediterranean bound for the Straits of Suez and India—this area is due for a concentrated submarine attack.

A VISIT WITH STALIN

Secretary Hull might have got some interesting pointers for his Moscow trip from Cuban Ambassador Concheso, only Latin American diplomat who has met Stalin.

Brilliant Senor Concheso is both Cuban ambassador to the U.S.A. and Cuban minister to Soviet Russia. Recently he came back from a visit to the Soviet capital during which he presented his credentials to Foreign Minister Molotoff, and expressed the polite hope that he might also call upon Stalin. Knowing that Stalin was one of the busiest men in the world, however, Concheso did not press the point and actually did not expect to see him.

So he almost fell out of his ballet seat one night when someone tapped him on the shoulder and told him that Stalin would see him in 20 minutes. How Stalin knew the Cuban diplomat was enjoying the famous Moscow Ballet, Concheso did not know.

However, he was told that a motor would call for him at the theater in 15 minutes, and he should be ready. Concheso consulted a British diplomat, also present at the ballet, who told him that the man who had tapped him on the shoulder was the Russian chief of protocol, so he had better be ready.

It was May, but zero weather in Moscow. However, Ambassador Concheso did not find it cold in the Kremlin. (Churchill wore a zipper-suit when he called on Stalin, and Mrs. Hull has been worrying on behalf of her husband about the cold in the Kremlin.) Only two officers guarded Stalin. One officer met the Cuban at the entrance of the building and escorted him to Stalin's office. There he was met by another officer who took him the rest of the way. There was no pomp or ceremony.

GENIAL JOSEPH

Stalin himself was not fierce, but kindly and genial. His eyes, according to Ambassador Concheso, are deep and penetrating, but with wrinkles of humor in the corners.

The Soviet premier seemed surprisingly well-posted on Cuban problems, knew something about its labor laws and its economic questions. However, he was not familiar with Cuban - U. S. relations and seemed to think that Cuba was still politically dependent on the U.S.A. The ambassador explained that the Platt amendment had been abrogated and Cuba now enjoyed complete freedom.

Embargo on Turkeys Lifted

Turkey meat and now unrestricted, and producers may sell them on the open market, likewise civilians may obtain turkey on the market. The embargo on turkey sales that has been in effect since August 1 was lifted at noon on Monday, October 25, by the War Food Administration. J. Ward Wood, chairman of the West Virginia USDA War Board, reports.

The embargo order enabled the military authorities to obtain 15 million pounds of turkey meat in time for winnings shipment. When requirements have been met in full, and a good share of the supply available for domestic civilians has been secured.

In lifting the embargo, the Army and Food Distribution Administration officials point out that the temporary use of the government in purchasing turkey only one of methods to insure getting the use of turkey for a time has made it possible for all our fighting women serving overseas to have turkey dinner on Thanksgiving Christmas, and New Year's.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

The Youth Fellowship of the Methodist Church met last Sunday at 6:45. Nadine Shifflet was leader. The pianist, Betty Wooddell, played the prelude, "For the Beauty of the Earth." Miss Shifflett gave the call to worship. "For the Beauty of the Earth" was sung, followed by Scripture reading by Evelyn Galford. Marshall Shinaberry gave a talk on the song theme; Marie Dill talked of "Reverence in the House of God." "O Worship the King" was sung, and Betty Wooddell, a former member of the organization, talked on "Woods." Following the singing of "Holy, Holy, Holy," Maxine Shinaberry gave a talk on "The Everlasting God" and Bertha Lee Dill led in prayer.

Seventeen were present for the "Ones." Maxine Fisher, president, made the announcements and the meeting was closed by the benediction, which was repeated in unison.

Uncle "Pud" Tucker — Says —

By HOY McCUSKEY

THE OLD DEAL

We hear considerable talk these days from folks who have lived under all kinds of deals. To those of you who know little or nothing about the Old Deal Days, we'd like to tell you the folks had Cowhide boots for every day and Split-leather boots for Sunday. The kids were brought up to go to Sunday School and Church. Those Old Deal-ers were good old-fashioned ists, however. Uncle Jimmy could shout amen until the rafters ring. (They are all gone but if we had some of the Old Religion back right now it would do us a bit of harm.

6 LOYAL POCAHONTAS CITIZENS ARE GOING HOME

The members of Your Ration Board have earned a good night's rest

They'll sleep well tonight, those members of your local War Price and Rationing Board. Because it's late, they're tired — and they've done a worthwhile job.

They're just average Americans, your friends and neighbors. But—they're the type of patriots that make America "live." They work hard all day at their own jobs — and then put in after-hour sessions at the board — to make sure that everyone gets a fair share of food and fuel and other rationed commodities.

Nobody asked them to do it. They volunteered. They thought they owed it to the people in their community — and to the fellows "over there".

That's why they're working long hours — without pay — listening to complaints, making decisions, solving your problems with patience and fairness. It isn't easy. And more often than not it's a thankless job. So — help them all you can. It's the only way you can repay them.

An inquiring Journal-istic friend contributes the following resume of recent events at Morgantown:

The University campus was humming last week as the annual Homecoming came and went, and with it went Richard McElwee, Moffett Wilson, Roscoe Dodrill, Lois Brill, Jane Moore, and Betty Pifer, who were visiting friends and renewing old acquaintances. Also here were Mr. and Mrs. Miele Irvine and Margaret of Cass, who were visiting their son Bill, along with Albin Urbanic of Cass, recently returned to the campus from Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. They are now enrolled in the Army Specialized Training Unit here in the campus.

Roscoe Dodrill was seen at the Homecoming dance with Edith Ann Hutchinson from Ravenswood. Dick McElwee was there with Jane Moore, and John McCutcheon attended with Lois Brill. Dotty Lou McLaughlin was there with Footballer Tom Jackson of Wheeling. Dotty Lou Weiford was there with Smiling Bill Coffman Clendenin, and Grace Virginia Williams was there with Air Cadet Sidney McKinisk. Betty Pifer was there with Quinten Hall, a pre-med student.

Dick McElwee was seen greeting old acquaintances at the West Virginia-Carnegie Tech game, and John McCutcheon, sports editor of the Athenaeum, campus publication, was in the press box hammering the typewriter keys.

Pocahontas County students enrolled in the University are Grace Virginia Williams, Dotty Lou Mc-Laughlin, Dotty Lou Weiford, Margaret Smith, and Teddy Olsen, all from Marlinton, Maxine Shinaberry and Frederick Pritchard from Dunmore, John McCutcheon from Greenbank, and A. C. Hill, formerly of Cass, but now from Charleston.

Pritchard, Olsen and Hill are enrolled in the Engineering School, McCutcheon in the pre-Law School, Williams and Shinaberry are enrolled in the Home Economics School, while Laughlin and Weiford are Physical Education majors.

COUNTY FOUR-H CLUBS ARE REORGANIZING

Assistant County Agent Roscoe Dodrill and Home Demonstration Agent Esther LaRose are working together at the present time to reorganize the 4-H clubs of Pocahontas county for the club year 1943-44. In order to facilitate club reorganization, all club members who have not yet completed their project circulars for the past year should see that these are completed and sent in to the assistant county agent at once. Mr. Dodrill asks that any schools or committees which have not been contacted and which desire to have a 4-H club organized or reorganized, get in touch with him at the County Agent's office, so that this can be planned during the next few weeks.

Clubs already organized in the county are:

Dunmore Flying Eagles, Mrs. R. M. Hiner, leader.

The Dunmore Mountaineers, Glen Tracy, leader.

The Seneca Hustlers, W. A. Hively, leader.

The Hillsboro Pep-to-Win Club, Miss Ruth Sheets, leader.

The Seneca Trail Go-Getters, Maynard Dilley, leader.

The Seneca Trail Older 4-H Club, Mrs. Eula Hannah, leader.

The Buckeye Dirt Gardeners, Miss Madelaine McNeil, leader.

The Poage Lane Victory Club, Miss Jane Dilley, leader.

The Cass 4-H Club, Marie Dill, leader.

Other meetings have been scheduled at several other schools of the county.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Lost Ration Books May Be Returned at Owners' Cost

Under arrangements made with the post office department, finders of lost ration books may drop them in the mail without prepaying postage or enclosing them in envelopes, E. H. Wade, chairman of the Pocahontas county war price and rationing board has been advised.

On payment of a five-cent postage due charge, the post office department will return the lost book to the person whose name and address appears on the cover, Mr. Wade said. When the addressee cannot be found, the post office will forward the book to the nearest war price and rationing board.

While the percentage of lost ration books is low, the problem of returning them is important to the owners, who of course need them for use in buying rationed foods. In making it as convenient as possible for a finder to return a lost book by simply putting it in a mail box, the OPA believes the number of returns will be increased.

Junior Red Cross Drive Under Way in County

Enrollment of all pupils in all the Pocahontas county schools is the attractive goal which has been set for the American Junior Red Cross Service Campaign, November 1 to 15. The motto is "Enrollment for Service" and membership in the Junior Red Cross will enable all boys and girls to share in important work appropriate to their ages and abilities.

Mrs. Beatrice Gladwell is urging all schools to conduct enrollment drives immediately. The chairman stated that more than 17,000,000 American youth participated in the program throughout the nation last year. The goal for Pocahontas county is 100% enrollment, and forms and fees should be sent in by the November 15 deadline.

From an old French word "mes" derived from the Latin word "missus" meaning a course at a meal, comes the Army's name "mess" for its breakfast, dinner and supper. Favorite meal with the soldier is chicken dinner—his favorite cigarette, Camel. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) A carton of Camels, by the way, is a gift that's always welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of a North Carolina newspaper, has been inducted into the army and has completed a good portion of his basic training at Fort Bragg. Classified as a cook and with plenty of extra KP duty because of his failure at times to grasp some of the fundamentals of army life, he has become quite familiar with the Company kitchen. He has learned the finer points of "goldbricking" and has mastered the elements of army slang. As we pick up his story here, Hargrove is listening to a bus driver in a nearby town expand on his former army career. Hargrove suspects (and rightly so) that the truth is being stretched. The bus driver speaks:

CHAPTER XIII

"'Well,' he said, hemming and hawing a little, 'three stripes means he's just a plain buck sergeant. Six stripes is a master sergeant. I'm a supply sergeant. That's two grades above a buck sergeant and one grade below a master sergeant. I'm expecting to be a master sergeant in a month or so. That's as high as you can get.'

"I didn't say anything for a while; just sat there looking like I was letting it soak in. Then I asked him, real calm-like and ignorant, 'How many stripes does a private first class have?'

"So help me, he looked like he was going to choke for a while. Then he came back with a snappy answer in a flash.

"'Well,' he said, 'first-class privates have one stripe, just like us supply sergeants, only their stripe is bottom-upward from ours. Their stripes point down.'

"Well, sir, I thought I'd die. I almost popped trying to keep from laughing, but I kept a straight face. Then I said, 'Things sure have changed since I was in the Army. Back then, three or four years ago, supply sergeants were just plain buck sergeants and first-class privates were the only one-stripe men.'

"'Yeah,' he said, sort of weak-like, 'time changes a lot of things.'

"That was all he had to say. He looked sort of foolish and pulled the cord to get off at the next stop.

"So there was another bull session shot to hell. Maybe it was for the best, though. I didn't have a chance against a fellow with that much talent."

I ran out of cigarettes this afternoon near my old cooks' battery, so I thought I'd drop in on First Sergeant Goldsmith, who smokes the same brand that I do. Sergeant Goldsmith is the old type of top sergeant, with a heart of GI shoe leather and a voice that would put the stoutest bugle to shame.

"Great gods and little paychecks," he railed. "Look what's loose again! What's the latest, little man, or aren't reporters supposed to know?"

"The only news I've heard today," I told him, helping myself to a coffin nail from his desk, "is that they're sending all the first sergeants in the Replacement Center to Panama for hard-labor service detachments. Polish your brass and you might make acting corporal before the war's over."

"Oh, it's lovely to run into an old top sergeant who can't put you on kitchen police when you sass back at him."

"You're a sweet little lad, Hargrove," he purred. "We really do

The basket had in it a cheerful little blaze bright enough to take action photographs on a moonless night.

miss you here. When you were here, I never had to worry about where I was going to get another man when there was a stovepipe to be cleaned or a street to be swept. Now I have to go and search around—search, mind you—for someone who's been a bad little boy. Never had that trouble when you were here."

"Sergeant," I told him, propping my feet on his wastebasket, "you never miss the water until it's gone under the bridge. This battery owes a lot to me. Look out there at that grass growing in front of the orderly room. That grass wouldn't be there—much less be that green—if I hadn't spent time and labor sprinkling it with fertilizer. And think how much cleaner the windows were when I was here to wash every one of them every week. I'll bet you haven't had a clean floor in the battery since I laid down my mop."

"How's sergeant Oaton making out with his grocery budget?" I asked. "Trying to feed you on forty-two cents a day? The last time I saw him, he was working out plans to feed you on Buncombe County turnip greens or pay you to eat at the Service Club."

"Oh, that," he said. "I've saved so much on cigarettes since you left the battery that I could afford to eat uptown now if I wanted to. And let's leave any remarks about Buncombe County out of this. And let's leave your feet out of my wastebasket."

From now on I must deny myself one of the fundamental rights and joys of mankind. I must quit bumming matches from those near and dear to me—that is, if I want them to remain near and dear to me. Whenever I ask anyone around Center Headquarters—even Mulvehill or Bishop or Bushemi—for a match, I get one of two answers, both of which are getting very tiresome by now. I hear either "What's the matter? Has your fire gone out?" or "Just light your cigarette on one of our conflagrations; there should be a small arson in yonder corner."

Since I am a patient and long-suffering child, I make no scathing remarks in return for these jaded witticisms. I merely shrug my frail shoulders pathetically and seek greener pastures. It isn't so bad, their refusing the match. The worst part of it is the reminder of an incident which might well be forgotten. The incident is of no consequence, but it might as well come off my chest.

Being a slave to the despoiler of human health and well-being, the cigarette, I still have a fondness for an occasional switch to a pipe. I don't especially enjoy the taste of pipe tobacco, and I don't believe even the most avid pipe smoker especially cares for it. Most of them like me, merely like the feel of a pipe in their mouths and the dignity and solemnity a pipe gives them when they punctuate their conversations by jabbing the air with it.

Smoking a pipe only occasionally, I still have not become overly proficient at keeping the little things burning. When I buy a can of tobacco, I buy a five cent box of country matches with it. Half my smoke is tobacco; the other half is Georgia pine smoke from the matchsticks.

I was busy today typing out a story, and I had lit my pipe for about the twenty-second time. I threw the match into the wastebasket and forgot all about the whole thing. I was absorbed in my work.

I noticed by degrees that our office was becoming lighter and warmer. I noted the fact with a rich feeling of comfort, but no great interest in finding out the cause. It wasn't until I reached for another match to light that pipe again that I noticed my wastebasket. The thing had in it a cheerful little blaze bright enough to take action photographs on a moonless night.

There was nothing to get excited about, I told the remainder of the public relations staff, the sergeant major's corps of assistants, and the filing department. I nonchalantly put my foot into the basket and started stamping out the fire. The thing would have worked, too, except that the length of my foot was greater than the diameter of the wastebasket. The foot stuck and I could not stamp.

Corporal Sager, of Plans and Training, leaped to the rescue, pried the foot from the basket, grabbed the basket and sped away to the water cooler. I followed him and poured myself a cup of water. I still saw no cause for excitement.

To the bystanders' catcalls, unseemly laughter, and accusations of arson, I turned a fatherly ear and a quieting voice. I explained patiently that setting fire to wastebaskets was an ancient and honored pastime in the newspaper world. I told them that one of the best newspaper men North Carolina has ever seen—"Uncle John" Dickson, former city editor of the News—used to set his wastebasket on fire at least twice a week by tossing cigarettes or burning matches into it. It was a mark of certain industry, a sign that a man was wrapped up in his work.

Maury Sher, my old buddy when we were together in the student cooks' battery, had been on an extended furlough. Before he returned, I had left on a three-day pass for Charlotte. We had not got together for two or three weeks, so I went over to his battery to look him up.

The battery street was almost empty; the mess-hall door was locked. The mess sergeant was nowhere to be seen. Finally I found a soldier who had seen Sergeant Sher in his room, so I looked for him there.

The sergeant lay on his lazy back on a stilted bunk in his cadre room, reading Dorothy Parker. The windows of the room had been equipped with flimsy green curtains, and partially deflated holiday balloons fluttered against them. On the wall above the bed hung a small oil painting of a forest, with an icy white mountain in the background. A writing table had been installed and on a shelf in over his bunk were a reading lamp, a small radio, and a neat array of books.

I stood there surveying the place for a while. "What in the sweet name of military hardship have you got here?" I asked him. "All this place needs is a couple of Morris chairs and a sign reading, 'What is home without a mother?'"

"Beginning to look nice, ain't it?" he said. "Just a few minor improvements here and there. Know where I can pick up a small upright piano at a good price?"

I looked over the room again and my eye fell on the resplendent forest scene. "Where'd you get this canvas knickknack? It's an original, isn't it?"

"It ain't nothing else but," he said. "Painted by a friend of mine up in Columbus. Guy knocks them off like that in about twenty minutes. How do you like it?"

Aside from the fact that the waterfall is a little frothy and the mountain looks like something from a mentholatum advertisement, it would do credit to any mess sergeant's room in the whole Replacement Center."

"You didn't notice this," he said, lifting himself lazily from the bunk. From the table he took an ordinary-looking beer can with an extra lid on it. "John Bull Beer," he said. "Can't buy it anywhere except in my family's restaurant in Ohio and Pennsylvania."

He lifted the top lid, revealing a businesslike cigarette lighter. I took the can, struck the flint and a roaring blaze leaped at me. It burned merrily away.

"Not bad, huh? Good advertising scheme."

"It should come in handy," I told him, "anytime the furnace goes blah. That little conflagration would heat a whole barracks in three minutes flat."

He twisted the dial of his radio and a high-pitched feminine wail bounced off the far wall. "I've been listening to the opera most of the afternoon—The Magic Flute."

"What happened to the magic skillet?" I asked. "How come you're lying around here instead of bustling about your kitchen—tickling the pal-

"Have you any last words before I pass KP on you?" the sergeant asked.

ates of the men with your culinary delights, as they say in the Army cooks' manual?"

"No supper tonight," he explained airily. "We're just changing cycles and there ain't nobody here but the noncommissioned officers, like myself. I told them to go and eat next door.

"This is the life, little man." He yawned. "Nothing to do, nothing to worry about. Just lie around, read and listen to the opera. Sans souci, as we French say—without care."

The first sergeant looked over his glasses with a rather unpleasant gleam in his eyes. He glanced significantly at the top of my head, so I removed my cap. The first sergeant adjusted himself in his chair and cleared his throat.

"Private Hargrove," he began slowly and deliberately, "the government of the United States, to whom no task seems impossible, has tackled the job of pulling you a little of the way out of your abysmal ignorance. With complete faith that heaven will help them in this job, they have begun a series of lectures about why you are being trained to fight, whom you are being trained to fight, and all the other little things you should know."

"Yes, sir," I said hesitantly, running my finger around the inside of my collar. "You mean the radio lectures on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons."

"From four until four-thirty," the first sergeant said. "The entire population has been invited by Upstairs to gather in the mess halls to hear and discuss these lectures. Yesterday afternoon you weren't on hand. Have you any last words before I pass KP on to you?"

"It's a rather long story, sergeant," I began.

"Here we go again," sighed the sergeant. "Have a chair and begin breaking my heart. It will make you feel better to have that off your chest before you go to the kitchen."

"Sergeant," I asked him, "were you ever editor of a high-school newspaper?"

"Is this long story about me or you?" the sergeant asked. "Please continue with your story."

"Well, sir," I continued, "only a high-school editor could know the pain that is in my heart. Only he could sympathize with me. I have gone back to my old job I had years ago. I am again a true high-school editor. I am editor of the Replacement Center section of the Fort Bragg Post."

"Meeting such a dignitary is one of the greatest occasions of my life," the first sergeant said dryly.

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—1 John 3:15.

Human life is sacred—and there is a very important reason why that is true. It is not because of any law of man, but finds its foundation in the fact that God created man in His own likeness and image. Because that is true, no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the orderly process of law for the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man.

Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses.

One cannot deny that human life is held rather cheaply in many places today. War helps to create that attitude on the part of nations which makes them count boys and girls, yes, mere babies, as "war material."

But not only in war is life carelessly destroyed. We decry the "slaughter of innocents" on the highway, unnecessary death in industry, yes, even in the home.

I. The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13).

The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unauthorized taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder."

Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or he may be the duly constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to live because he has slain another.

There is also the right of self-defense, be it individual or collective as in war. But these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any other.

Murder is more prevalent than most of us suppose. Some years ago we were told that there was a murder every forty minutes in our land. With the general increase of crime, and of drunkenness (which so often incites murder), the current figures would probably show an increase.

Do not forget the deaths, the destruction of life, by avoidable automobile accidents. Some of these were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say that we should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Provocation to Murder (Matt. 5:21,22).

Murder finds its provoking cause in the heart of man. Our Lord was concerned about correcting the desires rather than to apprehend the offender after the act had been committed. It is the better way, and the more effective one.

In this matter of murder, Jesus cut right through the outward aspects of the matter and pointed out that an angry hatred in the heart is the root of all murder. If we hate, we have murder in our hearts. Circumstances may hinder its fulfillment, but the danger is always there until we remove the cause.

Just being angry—calling our brother "raca" (the modern equivalent of which is "nobody there"), and calling him "thou fool," which classifies him as "morally worthless"—these are the three dreadful downward steps to murder. And they begin in anger.

May God help those of us who have strong feelings that we may not yield them to the devil in such anger against our brother!

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23-26, 38-45).

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to keep us from killing. He deals with the heart, and thus puts the whole life right. It is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has aught against us we are to do all we can to win him. He may be unreasonable, grasping, and unfair. However, the spirit that will win him is not that of retaliation or sullen submission to the inevitable, but rather a free and willing going even beyond what is required.

It is clear from other scriptures that our Lord does not mean that wicked and unscrupulous men are to be permitted to defraud and destroy God's people. At the same time, we must be careful not to explain away the heart of our Lord's interpretation of this great commandment.

We who believe in Christ are to be in deed as well as word the sons of our heavenly Father (v. 45), loving not only those who are kind to us, but even our enemies.

Kidneys Must Work Well-
For You To Feel Well
24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.
Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

PNEUMONIA DEATHS

Just as we are congratulating ourselves that physicians are not worried much about their pneumonia cases since the sulfa drugs have been shown to be so effective in curing pneumonia, thus saving many lives, we learn from physicians, hospitals and insurance companies that pneumonia is again increasing.

Dr. Barton

In the Statistical Bulletin, Metropolitan Life Insurance company, we read:

"The rise in the death rate in pneumonia will be noted with surprise by many people who for the past few years have heard so much about the striking decline in the death rate following the use of sulfa drugs in the treatment of the disease." The death rate was lowered from about 9 per cent to 3 per cent because the sulfa drugs were able to defend the body against what is called the coccus form of pneumonia (small round organisms seen under the microscope).

However, the type of pneumonia which is now causing so many cases is not the coccus (pneumococcus) type but a virus type; that is a very tiny organism which cannot be seen under the microscope. Despite their ability to defeat the pneumococcus type of pneumonia, the sulfa drugs have no effect upon this type of pneumonia.

A point of interest is that a recent study of fatal cases of this type of pneumonia among policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company shows that a large proportion of the deaths were among younger persons. Of the 150 deaths recorded in the company's experience since last November, 36 per cent were between the ages of 15 and 44 years, as compared with only 18 per cent (of the total number) of pneumonia deaths in a normal year.

It has been known for some time that war conditions increase the number and severity of nose, throat and lung ailments; the influenza epidemic of 1918-19 is still in our minds. This means that during the coming months of cold weather, the greatest possible health precautions should be taken.

"Those doing hard manual labor or putting in long hours of overtime should be encouraged to get as much rest as possible in their time. Every effort must be made to maintain good nutrition which is quite possible within the limits of rationing."

Headache in Morning Is Sinusitis Symptom

When a definite case of sinus disease is present with pus formation, there is no difficulty in recognizing it.

What about mild or early cases of inflammation of the sinus?

In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. Keith Hutchison, Montreal, states:

"The symptoms of acute inflammation of the sinus—sinusitis—are definite and I always accept the midmorning headache as evidence of a true sinusitis, even though nothing definite appears on the first examination."

This midmorning headache is important because there are so many kinds of headache that the physician is grateful for any and every clue.

"When an intelligent patient reports that he felt well on arising and then about 10 o'clock in the morning a severe frontal headache came on which persisted till midafternoon then disappeared and the patient went to bed free of pain and discomfort only to go through the same symptoms the next day, a clear-cut diagnosis of acute catarrhal sinusitis may be made and treated accordingly."

The treatment outlined by Dr. Hutchison is to put the patient to bed, hot cloths on the face, ephedrine solution in the nose, plenty of fluids and a rigid rule of no smoking. Two to four days' rest generally effects a cure.

Because the symptoms are not severe, "just a little head cold," many patients refuse to go to bed, with the result that the cold "hangs on" and instead of there being simply a watery discharge from the nose, the discharge may become mucous and even pus formation occur.

The patient with an early or light sinusitis should go to bed and follow the treatment described if he wishes to prevent chronic catarrh or sinusitis.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What causes neuritis?

A.—There must be some cause for your neuritis—infected teeth, or other infection, possibly pressure on nerve supplying the arm. See your dentist.

Q.—Would a half grain of saccharine in coffee or tea be harmful for an adult or a boy of 17?

A.—Saccharin tablets (½ grain) three times a day will do no harm; also all right for boy of 17 to use. Sugar gives more energy, of course.

Currence to Enter Navy

At its meeting this week the Pocahontas county court accepted the resignation of Prosecuting Attorney Richard F. Currence, who will enter naval service this month." At a meeting later this month, it is reported, the court probably will name a successor for Mr. Currence.

Farm Foresters Will Assist In Timber Cropping; Ceiling Prices Announced.

With domestic pulpwood production, as represented by mill receipts, substantially improved since the launching of the newspaper Victory Pulpwood Campaign early in August, there is still a need for increased production during the remaining weeks of 1943 if the 13,000,000-cord goal of domestic pulpwood set by the War Production Board is to be reached, Walter M. Dear, chairman of the Newspaper Pulpwood Committee, said in a recent letter to the editor.

Mr. Dear pointed out that receipts of wood at pulp mills do not give an accurate picture of actual pulpwood cutting during recent months, as in most regions outside of the South there is often a long lag between the time pulpwood is cut and the time it reaches the mill. The mills experienced a slight upswing in mill receipts in August and September but at the same time there exists the necessity for continued improvement in production, he explained.

After its initial efforts, the Newspaper Pulpwood Campaign has now adopted a new slogan. From November 11 to December 11 the goal is "Cut-a-Cord for Every Local Boy in Service."

To facilitate present needs and to provide for the needs of the future, farmers of Pocahontas county may request the aid of a farm forester in managing their timberlands, says Charles K. Peck, Extension forester at West Virginia University, pointing out that the Extension Service, the Conservation Commission, and the U. S. Forest Service are cooperating in a program to increase and preserve the productivity of the forests.

To assist landowners in marketing their timber profitably and in line with good forestry practice, the non-profit West Virginia Forest Products Association was formed. Cooperating agencies will provide a farm forester, on request, to cruise the woodland in areas where such services are available if the owner agrees to carry out the recommended management plan. Farm woodland owners in areas not served by cooperative farm foresters may be able to obtain assistance through their county agricultural agent.

Although the need is great, careful cutting is important, Peck insists. He warns against clear cutting, which destroys the stand, increases the fire hazard, promotes erosion of the soil, and delays the growth of a new crop. He recommends these practices in cutting pulpwood:

Leave Enough Trees for Stand

Leave a sufficient number of young trees to make a good stand—at least enough so that the trees will not be more than 16 feet apart. Leave better quality trees where possible, such as yellow poplar, red oak, sugar maple, white oak, black cherry, and basswood.

Cut poorer quality trees, such as beech, gum, elm, sycamore, cucumber, buckeye, cottonwood, hickory, and white walnut.

Cut all poor and worthless trees that waste woodland space, regardless of species, cut low stumps, and cut the tree top where it measures four inches through. Don't waste large limbs; they can be made into pulpwood. Smaller limbs and portions of the tops can be utilized for firewood either for home use or market.

These practices, the forester says, will result in faster growth, better trees, continuous crop of timber, more pulpwood now when it is so greatly needed, more money through the years, and less waste of material in the woods. Woodland owners are urged to make a careful study of market specifications and requirements before cutting any timber; otherwise much loss and waste may result.

By doing his own cutting and hauling, a farmer will get the greatest cash return for his timber, Peck says. Work in the woodland can be made to fit in with other farm work by using the present slack season and rainy days.

Price Ceilings Announced

West Virginia has been divided into three market zones for pulpwood, and price ceilings for each zone have been established by the Office of Price Administration, Mr. Peck reports. All prices are for a cord of 160 cubic feet, f.o.b. railroad car at point of shipment, he says.

In Zone I which includes the eight counties in the Eastern panhandle of the state, the OPA price ceilings for pulpwood are $16 for a cord of peeled wood and $12 for a cord of unpeeled wood.

In Zone II, including Cabell, Putnam, Kanawha, Clay, Nicholas, Webster, Pocahontas and all counties to the north, excepting those in the Eastern panhandle, the price ceilings are $15 per cord of peeled wood and $11 per cord of unpeeled wood.

In Zone III, including all counties south of Zone II, the price ceilings are $14.50 per cord of peeled wood and $10 per cord of unpeeled wood.

CONVERTED FARM TRACTOR FIRST VEHICLE TO BE CALLED "JEEP"

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The name "Jeep" was first given to a converted MM farm tractor, shown above, and used during maneuvers at Camp Ripley in 1940. This military tractor was termed "Jeep" by James T. O'Brien, then a private in the 109th Ordnance Company, Minnesota National Guards, who now is a First Sergeant in the United States Army. Sergeant O'Brien says he called it "Jeep" because it could go almost anywhere and knew all the answers just like the "Jeep" in the Popeye cartoons, who also knew all the answers and if treated right could do many unusual things. This dispels the popular misconception that the nickname came from the contraction of the words "General Purpose" (GP), an Army and agricultural tractor term. "Jeep" became Army parlance and it is acknowledged that if it were from "General Purpose" the spelling would be "Geep." The original Minneapolis-Moline Jeep was a four wheel drive machine made expressly for pulling big guns and heavy equipment now used on many battle fronts.

LET US HONOR THE LIVING

NOV. 11 to DEC. 11
Cut-a-Cord
for every local boy in service
US VICTORY PULPWOOD CAMPAIGN

NEWSPAPER PULPWOOD COMMITTEE

NEXT THURSDAY is Armistice Day. In other years that day has been dedicated to the memory of the men who gave their lives in World War I. But this year we believe those honored dead would rather join with us, the living, in paying honor to the men of another generation who have taken up the weapons that fell from their lifeless hands.

This year we in this community are asked to observe Armistice Day not with words but with deeds. This year we have a special responsibility.

This Armistice Day marks the beginning of a new drive to make up the shortage in pulpwood. Everyone who can possibly do so is asked to cut an extra cord in honor of some friend or relative in the service.

There are two good reasons for putting the drive on this basis.

First, it takes nearly a ton of pulpwood to supply each man in the service with the many things he needs.

Second, the present pulpwood shortage, 2½ million cords, is just about equal to the number of service men who come from the pulpwood-producing areas.

So if every one of us in this and other pulpwood-cutting communities cuts an extra cord for our service man, the emergency will be met. No fighting man will lack any of the thousand-and-one war essentials that are made from pulpwood.

No boy shall die because we failed.

THE MARLINTON JOURNAL

VOL. 25—NO. 35 "JOURNAL — BELONGING TO THE DAY"—Webster. MARLINTON, WEST VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1943 PRICE: $1.50 A YEAR

War Fund $800 Short of Goal

Will Continue in Effort To Reach Full Quota

While urging all county citizens who have not made contributions to do so at once, so that the drive may be brought to an early and successful completion, Harper M. Smith, chairman, released figures Monday of this week to show that an amount of $2,683.91 had now been turned in, and that with a little more determined effort upon the part of everybody, the goal of $3,500 for Pocahontas county's National War Fund can be achieved.

Some county communities and certain sections of Marlinton proper, where the drive has been under way for some time, have not yet turned in reports, according to Mr. Smith. It is pointed out with pride that many districts, and some of the county's more sparsely populated sections, have been extremely generous. Among these were Stony Bottom which had contributed $71.30; Linwood with contributions amounting to $76.00; Woodrow, with $74.30. In Greenbank and Arbovale, gifts totaled $201.50, and Brownsburg Community (colored), had sent in $40.90. Four Camden Avenue residents in Marlinton had given a total of $4.50. Setting the pace for individual donations were Mr. and Mrs. A. McLaughlin, who gave $37.50, in order for the advertisement in both daily newspapers which explained the purposes of the drive and listed the participating agencies; and Mrs. A. L. Coyner of Cloverlick, who said that "each participating group in the National War Fund is worthy of individual gifts of at least $1.00 each," and accordingly made a donation of $4.00, one dollar for each agency in the campaign.

Stating that the War Fund drive has already exceeded the time limit, which was the month of October, Mr. Smith expressed the hope that all workers would complete the canvass of their communities at once, so that citizens who have thus far declined from giving would add their names immediately to the growing list, and help put Pocahontas county OVER THE TOP, and thus show our men and women on war fronts all over the world, hundreds of whom regularly receive the county papers and read the names of contributors, that the citizens of their county are backing up their courageous sacrifices in every possible way.

U. S. Postal Head Urges Christmas Mailing Now

Delivery of the annual flood of Christmas gifts and cards on time, always a serious problem, "will be more than a problem this year—it will be an impossibility — unless Christmas mailings are made largely in November," Postmaster General Frank C. Walker warned today.

"Transportation facilities are burdened to the limit with war materials and personnel, and the Postal Service has sent more than 31,000 experiencey employees into the Army and Navy," Mr. Walker said. "The only solution to the Christmas problem is: Mail In November. Mark your parcels, 'Do Not Open Until Christmas.' That is the only way to avoid disappointment on Christmas Day not only for many civilians but also for millions of the armed forces who are still in this country.

"It is also the only way to avoid the possibility of a Christmas emergency in the transportation and postal services. If the public will cooperate by mailing their Christmas parcels during November, we can handle a small volume of light, last-minute mailings, such as cards, up to December 10—but we can do that and avoid an emergency only if November is really 'Chrsitmas Mailing Month.'"

Sheep Production Meetings Arranged

By BEN MORGAN

A major portion of the farm income of Pocahontas county is derived from the production of market lambs and wool. The county has, according to the 1940 census, approximately 34,000 head of ewes—one year of age or older. If our income from these ewes would average, as it should, at least $12 per head from the sale of wool and lambs, the total sheep income for Pocahontas county would be $408,000. At the present lamb price, this $12 per head would only be one average lamb per ewe and her fleece of wool. Every dollar per ewe that we can increase this income, will mean an increased farm income for Pocahontas county of $34,000 per year. This income can be increased not only $1 per head, but $3 or $4 per head, if we will only use better flock management practices.

In order to assist sheep producers in putting into use some of these better management practices, a series of sheep production meetings has been planned for the month of November. As an additional incentive to carry out some of these practices, a Master Shepherd's Contest has been set up for the county, with premiums sufficient to make it very worthwhile, in addition to any gain we may have from better practices carried out in connection with the program.

The contest will be discussed in detail at the sheep meetings to be held at the various communities. It is hoped that every sheep producer will make an effort to attend one of the meetings.

Anyone who has not entered the entry form for the Master Shepherd's Contest should do so at once. The committee in charge of the contest is composed of J. S. Sydenstricker, chairman, Herman Gilley, Emerson Sivenger, Calvin Price and Moffett Williams. It is hoped that it may be possible to have one of these men present for each of the community meetings.

Schedule of Meetings

Monday, November 15 — Sunset Free School—7:30 p. m.

Tuesday, November 16 — Frost School—7:30 p. m.

ARMISTICE DAY

November 11, 1943

"Face to the East! It seems a grim jest,
For this is to honor the boys who 'went West!'
Face to the East! Stop the traffic and noise;
The moment is sacred, it belongs to the boys.
Face to the East! Banker, farmer, and clerk,
Every rank, all conditions, stop both play and work.

"Face to the East! This moment's for them,
Our gay laughing boys who died, aye, like men,
Face to the East! and murmur a prayer
For the lads who forever have gone 'Over There.'
Face to the East! While Mem'ry enwraps
Her dear arms around us. Now, Bugler, sound 'taps.'"

MEMBER WEST VIRGINIA CONSERVATION COMMISSION

On next Thursday, Armistice Day, the remainder of the hunting season opens. You will be able, starting at 7 a. m. Thursday morning, to hunt the following: Quail, in all counties except Tucker until January 15, 1944, inclusive. Bag limit eight per day, 35 the season. Cottontail rabbits, all counties, until January 15, 1944, inclusive, bag limit six per day, 40 the season. Raccoon, Opossum, Skunk and Mink, all counties, November 11 to January 30, 1944, inclusive. Bag limit for raccoon, two per day, 10 the season. Two a day in any twenty-four-hour period starting at noon for one person and-or group of persons hunting in a party. There are no bag limits on Muskrat, Mink, Opossum, Red Fox and Skunk. The Red Fox is not protected in Kanawha County and can be killed at any time.

The season on turkeys and squirrels closes November 27th and the season on Ruffed Grouse closes on December 31, 1943.

Warning: If you were fortunate enough to get yourself a turkey you MUST report your kill to the Director of the Conservation Commission. Failure to report same may get you into trouble.

Bass Fishing season closes November 30, 1943.

Important Information:

Controlled public shooting areas are as follows: Cooper's Rock State Forest, Deer, Ruffed Grouse and Cottontail Rabbits. Seneca State Forest, Deer, Ruffed Grouse, Cottontail Rabbits and Grey Squirrels. Kumbrabow State Forest, Ruffed Grouse only. Cabwaylingo State Forest, Cottontail Rabbits, Quail and Grey Squirrels. Watoga State Park, Deer only, total kill 75 deer.

All hunters MUST secure a permit at the Forest, Park Office, or Checking Station each day before entering the open shooting areas. Bag quotas and regulations for each particular hunting area will be posted giving full information. Be sure to acquaint yourself with the regulations. As a public safety measure, no permits will be issued to persons under fifteen years of age during the Deer Season on these areas.

Grouse hunters who have been hunting since the season started on October 9th report plenty of grouse but the dry weather has interferred with their hunting. Of course, the earlier season makes grouse hunting kind of tough going. However, grouse hunting is not expected to reach its peak until a few more sharp frosts and windy days knock down the still heavy foliage which now obstructs so many good chances. Most of the complaints that I have heard were that the birds were getting up ahead of the hunter and with the shell situation as it is the hunters are not taking unnecessary chances on long shots.

Farm Bureau To Make Plans For Enrollment

Neighborhood Meetings Week of December 6

The officers and members of the board of directors of the Pocahontas County Farm Bureau have completed arrangements to hold one of its most important meetings of the year on Monday, November 15, according to E. Clyde Bussard, president of the local bureau. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p. m., and will be held in the County Agent's office, with Z. S. Smith, Jr., who has been selected by the local board as county membership chairman, presiding.

The purpose of the meeting, as stated by Mr. Smith, is to complete plans to bring the county, state and national Farm Bureau program and its accomplishments to the farm people of Pocahontas county through a series of neighborhood meetings to be held the week of December 6. Membership goals will be set for each neighborhood and the total of these will constitute the county's goal for 1944.

Next week's county meeting will bring together the chairman, vice chairman and attendance committee from each neighborhood in the county. Other county leaders are invited to assist in the discussion of plans for the county-wide membership program in December.

The neighborhood chairman and vice chairman, respectively, who are to be present for the meeting include:

Lobelia—G. A. Hull, Mrs. E. L. Cutlip.

Beard—Remus May, D. M. Callison.

Millpoint—F. W. Ruckman, R. H. Auldridge.

Hillsboro—Joel P. Beard, J. M. McNeel.

Slatyfork—Ivan L. Sharp, Mrs. Eula Hannah.

Indian Draft—Oley W. Jackson, Clarence Barlow.

Swago—Lewis Gay, Jim McNeill.

Huntersville—E. Clyde Bussard, Randall Sharp.

Knapps Creek—G. M. Sharp, C. P. Pritchard.

Dunmore—John U. Hevener, Davis T. Auldridge.

Greenbank — Howard Hevener, George V. Hannah.

Cherry Grove—H. L. Stokes, Willis Cassell.

Wesley Chapel — Ray Horner, Charles Wilfong.

George C. Deems, Southern States Cooperative, who is assisting the West Virginia Farm Bureau, will be present at the meeting and will bring some of the latest information on the work of the state and national Farm Bureaus. This year the West Virginia Farm Bureau with 9,357 members has the largest enrollment in its history. Pocahontas county increased its membership over the previous year by 4 members.

"I believe," stated Membership Chairman Smith, "that the farmers in the county realize the importance of a strong farm organization to represent them and to protect their interests. Working alone, the individual farmer can do very little to solve his farm problems or protect his interests, but through organization he can accomplish much. In Pocahontas county, in West Virginia, and in the nation, Farm Bureau is the organization that speaks for farmers."

Achievement Day Saturday

Pocahontas County Farm Women's Clubs will hold their Fourth Annual Achievement Day on November 13. The program will start at 10 a. m. in the Marlinton High School auditorium.

Following the business meeting a covered-dish luncheon will be served by the Women's Society of Christian Service, in the Friendship Hall of the Methodist church, about 12:30.

Miss Gertrude Humphreys of Morgantown will speak following the luncheon on the theme of the program, "Food Fights for Freedom."

All persons who plan to attend are urged to bring the food to the church before the program starts.

IT Impresses ME

THAT Sunday was a most exciting and pleasant day . . . This fortunate editor was privileged to preach in two of those quaint and hallowed Presbyterian churches of Pocahontas county—Liberty Church at Greenbank and Baxter Church at Dunmore . . . Both of these churches, I believe, were built about 1856 or so, and not only the buildings, but an "old-timey" religious atmosphere prevails at each of them . . . I could not refrain, with such an appropriate opportunity, from quoting a poem of which I have been very fond for a number of years, at the Liberty Church on Sunday morning—and I think it must have been written just about that place . . . The copy in my notes I gave to W. F. Groff, but at the behest of many other worshippers I am going to reprint it herewith so that anyone interested may clip it:

"I think God sees this house, serenely white,
Upon this hushed, tree-bordered lot, as one
With many mansions seeks, in calm delight,
A boyhood cottage, intimate with sun.
I think God feels Himself the owner here,
Not just rich Host to some self-seeking throng;
But Friend of village folk, who want Him near,
And offer Him simplicity and song.

"No stained-glass windows hide the world from view,
And it is well. The world is lovely there
Beyond clear panes where branch-scrolled skies look through,
And fields and hills, in morning hours of prayer.

"God spent His youth 'mid field, and hill and tree,
And Christ grew up in rural Galilee."

AND did you ever see the like of young people that were among the splendid crowd at the Dunmore church! . . .

WE will, of course, leave it to the judgment of others to say how WE got along . . . But will observe that if one is not inspired to preach well when he stands at the altar-desk of these two churches . . . he may just as well close up his book and quit . . .

SATURDAY a week ago, while hunting on the Coe Beverage expanse, we saw, just at dusk, our first deer out in the wilds . . . As we leaned against a tree trunk, watchfully waiting for an unwary squirrel to appear, a noise in the leaves proved to be the footsteps of a nice large doe, cautiously making her way along, about 200 feet distant . . . Another woodland sound startled her into running away with the swiftness peculiar to her specie . . . But on Sunday night after services, when a light rain was falling, as we rounded a turn in the road just above that same residence, we were compelled to apply our car brakes suddenly to avoid possible collision with a herd of four—three large-size does and a fawn—standing in the middle of the highway . . . They were confused by our headlights only for an instant, and then took up over a steep bank toward the woods . . .

PERSONS desiring a recipe for delectable fruit salad may address their inquiries to Joel Hannah, Arbovale, W. Va. . . . But be sure your Mother will let you make it, Extravagant Style, for HIS would not! . . .

—The Editor.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies Prepare Heavy Blows in Italy; Jugo-Slav Guerrillas Threaten Nazis Despite Outbreaks of Factional War; New Cattle Subsidy Plan Is Announced

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Riding in jeep, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (left) and Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark pause during front line tour to chat with British soldiers on Bren gun carrier.

EUROPE:
Prepare Attack in Italy

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army edged into position for a grand assault upon the Germans' new defenses along the 2,500-foot high Massico ridge in southern Italy, while the Nazis prepared to meet the charge by massing artillery and mortars on the front.

On the Adriatic side of the battle-line to the east, Gen. Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army also drew up into position for the next big blow by crossing the short Trigno river at several points.

Meanwhile there were indications that the Germans might be planning a strong counter-offensive of their own somewhere in central Italy. Allied reconnaissance reported the steady flow of Nazi troops and material from the north toward the battle zone. No such counter-offensive was expected, however, unless the Germans' defense weakened Allied attackers and drew them into open country where Tank Specialist Erwin Rommel could maneuver armor.

Nazis Fight Guerrillas

Peaky guerrilla activity in Jugoslavia commanded the attention of the Germans, with Marshal Rommel dispatching strong mechanized forces to quell the armed bands disrupting communications and destroying industrial plants.

But the effectiveness of Jugo-Slav guerrillas was threatened by another outbreak of factional dissension between the forces of King Peter's government and the new so-called "freedom army" of Tito Broz, which fought independently.

While the two political organizations reportedly have been harassing the Germans from one end of Jugoslavia to the other, they also have been accusing one another of collaborating with the Nazis. Broz' faction sentenced 17 persons to death for such collaboration, including a former Jugo-Slav general.

In attempting to wipe out the two guerrilla armies, the German armored columns drove into the hilly country to which Jugo-Slav riflemen retire for cover.

TAXES:
Plan 2 Billion More

Opposed to any form of sales tax, the house ways and means committee was prepared to report a new tax bill for congressional approval, yielding only two billion dollars of revenue instead of the 10½ billion dollars asked by the treasury.

Of the two billion dollars, 600 million would be raised by new liquor taxes. Levies on spirits would be boosted to $10 a gallon, on beer to $8 per barrel, and on wine from five cents to $1 a gallon.

Other revenue would be obtained by increasing postal rates to three cents on local mail, air mail to 10 cents an ounce, money orders 10 to 25 cents, telegrams 10 to 75 cents, and night letters 8 cents to $1.60. Cosmetic preparations would be taxed 10 per cent, jewelry 5 per cent, electric light bulbs and tubes would be taxed 10 per cent of the retail price, and there would be a levy of 10 per cent of the charge on bowling and pool billiard table.

If a sales tax were enacted, the WMC had warned that it would increase wage increases to cover additional purchase costs.

CATTLE:
New Subsidy

To stabilize livestock prices at present market levels, the government announced a new subsidy plan for processors and slaughterers.

Under the program, subsidies of 50 cents will be paid on common cattle selling between $10 and $11 per hundredweight, and for cutter and canner classes ranging from $7.45 to $8.45 per hundredweight.

For good grade cattle selling between $14.25 to $15.25 per hundredweight, a $1.45 subsidy will be paid, while for medium class stock bringing from $12 to $13, a 90 per cent grant will be made. To discourage production of choice to prime beef, a subsidy of $1 will be paid on grades from $15 to $16 per hundredweight.

To slaughterers who do not process by-products, a new subsidy of 80 cents per hundredweight was established. Slaughterers buying cattle below or above the stated prices will have their subsidies reduced by a similar amount.

PACIFIC:
New Blows

While Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's air force continued pounding Japanese outposts in the Southwest Pacific, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz promised the seizure of islands which would give the U. S. fleet control of the enemy's home waters.

Adm. Nimitz

No sooner had Admiral Nimitz, as commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, made his statement than it was reported that U. S. forces opened a drive on the Japs' last important stronghold of Bougainville in the Solomons by landing on Mono island to the south of the big base.

Gen. Kenney

Aiming at feeder points which have been supplying Jap positions in the Southwest Pacific, Lieutenant General Kenney's airmen have pulverized such strategic shipping centers as Rabaul on New Britain island, on which 500 tons of bombs were dumped in a five-day period.

PAY BOOST:
Offered Miners

With 40,000 miners out on wildcat strikes, the United Mine Workers policy committee was summoned to meet for consideration of the War Labor board's proposal for granting the nation's 550,000 miners a $1.12½ daily wage boost.

The WLB's proposal differed from the contract drawn between the Illinois Coal Operators and the UMW under which the miners would receive a $1.50 daily pay increase, with compensation for underground travel time.

Acceptance of the WLB proposal would result in wage increases of as much as $10 per week for 40½ hours, it was said, while its rejection would lead to a general mine strike with presidential intervention.

VETS:
Schooling Asked

Following recommendations of a committee of educators, President Roosevelt asked congress to appropriate one billion dollars for schooling of vets with six months service after the war.

Any qualified man or woman would be eligible for one year of study in a college or other educational institution, with the government paying the tuition and $50 living expenses for every single person. A married man would receive $75, with $10 extra for each child.

For persons with special aptitudes, it was proposed that the government finance their education up to three years. States would be in control of the program, certifying vets for assistance. About 8 per cent of the personnel of the armed services would take advantage of the educational opportunity, it was said.

RUSSIA:
Reds Tighten Noose

German armies fought desperately to draw themselves from the noose Russia's surging forces were attempting to pull tight in the great bend of the Dnieper river.

To the south, the Reds spilled over the flat steppes west of fallen Melitopol, and raced to thwart Germany's withdrawal of its forces from the Crimea.

Action along the whole southern front centered around the Russians' attempts to surround and smash the German armies threatened with encirclement from the rear, and the Nazis' desperate efforts to hold off the Reds with heavy counter-attacks while the bulk of their troops dropped back to the west, on the edge of the 1941 European border.

FOOD:
Margarine Tax

Because of growing opposition from the dairy bloc, a stiff fight loomed in congress over the proposal to eliminate federal taxes and restrictions on margarine.

While more consumption of whole milk was advocated, with "good" margarine substituted for butter, Representative August Andresen (Minn.) declared additional feed would supply sufficient milk for all purposes.

Consultant to the food and drug administration, Dr. A. J. Carlson of the University of Chicago, stated that present "good" margarine has nutritional values equal to butter, and tax laws strike at the poorer classes in most need of adequate nutrition. When the margarine tax was first enacted, he said, there was occasional fraud in the sale of the product and there was less information on nutrition.

Because cottonseed oil is an ingredient of margarine, there were charges that the congressional cotton bloc was interested in repealing the tax and restrictions.

INSURANCE:
Monopoly Question

With the controversy of whether or not the insurance business constitutes a monopoly brought up again with the Supreme court scheduled to pass on the question, Attorney General Francis Biddle urged congress to defeat a bill designed to exempt insurance companies from provisions of the anti-trust laws.

Atty. Gen. Biddle

Under terms of the bill, the anti-trust laws would not be construed as regulating insurance, or as impairing state regulation of that business.

"It would establish a dangerous precedent," Biddle said, "under which other groups of special interests might apply for and receive immunity from the anti-trust laws; thus by a process of attrition, whittling away the gains made toward preserving and strengthening the . . . system of free enterprise."

LIFT BLACKOUT:
Coasts Affected

Coastal cities can turn their lights on again. The war and navy departments have withdrawn the order requiring a partial blackout along the waterfronts, to prevent our ships being silhouetted against the sky. Such clearly outlined ships were an easy target for prowling submarines.

Because the submarine peril is much reduced, the military officials believe the blackout no longer necessary. It was announced. The order was effective November 1.

Politics Seen as Key in Farm Subsidy Problem

Acceptable Compromise Lacking; Presidential Veto Forecast for Any Bill Banning Use Of 'Economic Stimulant.'

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

The administration is in the midst of one of its fiercest contests to "hold the line" against stabilization. It is the old question of subsidies for farm products and it looks like a fight to the death. The house agriculture committee, with Representative Steagall and others swinging over to the Republican side, is backing the bill which would renew the appropriations for the Commodity Credit corporation and cut out the subsidies to processors, distributors and some direct cash aid to farmers. The present legislation expires in January. A presidential veto is taken for granted for any bill banning the use of subsidies. Administration supporters believe that such a veto can be sustained, but they see a tough, bitter fight ahead.

The key to the whole difficulty is violent partisanship. Successful politics is like successful living—in the family, in the community, in the world—it depends on the ability to compromise. In this fight, there seems to be no one able to work out an acceptable compromise. Already the feeling is bitter.

Cost of Living

Complicating the problem is, as usual, labor's insistence that the cost of living has gone up higher than statistics show, that the Little Steel formula is no longer a fair yardstick for wage increases since decisions of the War Labor board, plus insistence of the director of stabilization, hold down wages while the administration has not carried out its promises to roll back the living costs.

The farm organizations and the processors and the distributors oppose the roll-back. They don't put it that way. They say they oppose subsidies for rolling back consumer prices. They argue that subsidies to increase production and support prices in a free market are all right—and are horses of another color. The President sees no difference. Subsidies which permit the government to buy up commodities or make loans at a minimum price when the market price dips below that figure are all right, say the farm bloc, but, they claim, the "new" subsidies go further than that in that they mean payments direct to the processor and distributor and also buying and selling by the government. This, they claim, is in itself inflationary because it means payments out of the treasury. They say they don't believe that the money will get back to the farmer, that it means "grocery bills paid by the government," with very little real saving to the consumer, and finally, which is the real rub, it means too much government control.

Subsidies and Votes

Of course, there is the point that the politician doesn't like to mention—nobody who depends on votes wants to be in a position later on of having to remove those benefits. Another point, not stressed, is that subsidies to processors mean that the government has a right to look into the books of private industry.

But to the President, it is subsidies or inflation. At a recent press and radio conference, the President said that he got the head of the Farm Bureau federation, Edward O'Neil, to admit that letting prices go up in a free market, which the government says would have to be the alternative of the subsidy if the farmer was to get the incentive for increased production, would mean a little inflation. The President then told the story about the man who took just a "little" cocaine. He soon became an addict.

It was then that a woman reporter, known for her spicy questions, asked if the President didn't think that if his measure was carried we might become subsidy addicts. The President didn't seem to think so. He pointed out that agriculture has been getting subsidies since 1933.

Whether or not there is danger in any of this mild economic stimulant which the administration feels is a wartime necessity, everybody admits that runaway inflation must be avoided if possible. The whole complicated machinery of stabilization was created to prevent it.

The proponents of the subsidy plan say that the fight against them is purely political. They say the Republicans naturally take the side opposite to the administration because they can win some farm votes as champions of higher prices to farmers if they take this stand. On the other hand, they believe that the anti-subsidy bill will be vetoed eventually and the Democrats say the veto will be sustained. If so, the Republicans will not be criticized for supporting a measure which is defeated. And the Democratic support in the house agriculture committee, subsidy supporters say, was "bought" by allowing the present subsidies for the products grown in districts of the congressmen who supported the bill, to stand.

The administration followers say that it seems strange for the Republicans to raise a cry against subsidies when tariffs are subsidies. They mention the sugar "subsidy."

As for complaint that the subsidy on agricultural products would not reach the farmer, they call attention to the milk subsidies at present in operation where the man who milks the cow gets the subsidy direct.

Meanwhile, we know that the cost of living has already gone up. We know that we need full production of foodstuffs. We know that many farmers can't get the feed required to raise the stock or to fatten it to its most efficient weight for slaughter.

Payment of any money out by the treasury does mean more money in circulation but the subsidy proponents point to the kind of inflation we get when prices aren't controlled. The administration says it is better to control a few processors and distributors, even if Uncle Sam has to snoop into their books to see he isn't cheated, than to let that vicious spiral of prices and living costs start to mount.

In the next weeks you will hear a lot more of these arguments.

Food Contribution

The other day when I stepped into the broadcasting studio just as the Farm and Home Hour had ended, I found some cookies, some Brown Betty and a meat loaf sandwich waiting. These samples had been saved from a more elaborate layout of good things made with soy beans which had been the subject of the F & H broadcast.

I ate them with pleasure. Although the meat loaf was 25 per cent soy grits, it tasted exactly like meat to me. The cookies and the Brown Betty were excellent.

Soy flour and soy grits—the bread had some soy flour in it—are both on the market ready to contribute vitamins, mineral, protein, vim and vigor to our food, reducing the consumption of scarcer and more expensive products. A saving of from 20 to 25 per cent in meat and still having almost identical food values is nothing to be sneezed at.

Soy, it is pointed out, is not a substitute but a supplement to other foods and you would be surprised how many tasty dishes can be produced with it. The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics has a handy little pamphlet containing recipes, and you can get one by writing to the bureau, care of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

There are recipes for mint loaf, chile con carne, suggestions for use of soy with vegetables when they are served as a main dish; soy in sauces and mixed with cereals to give a richer protein diet—many suggestions for making what you have go further and accomplish more.

A Letter

Frankly, when I get a letter that makes me real mad, I sometimes mention it on the air. I shouldn't ever do it, I suppose, because I usually get a flood of sympathy which perhaps I don't deserve but one of the best replies I ever had was from a man in Spearfish, S. D., who wrote to me as follows:

"Each morning at 11 a. m. MWT, I tune you in. Now, I may be mistaken, yet it seems to me that at times you think some of the letters you receive are 'hitting below the belt' which has always been considered cowardly and unjustified. But in a great many cases, if we don't hit below the belt, we just make a total miss as it seems that some of the stuff that is put out for us to follow shows that there is NOTHING above the belt to hit at."

Nazi occupation authorities in Holland have even cut the Dutch horse-meat ration one-third. The weekly meat ration coupons, which used to be good for 150 grams of horsemeat, now are good for only 100 grams, or about two ounces, according to a report published in a German language daily in Holland. The cut means a great deal to the Dutch, whose living standards have lowered.

ON THE HOME FRONT
By Ruth Wyeth Spears

THIS bag was planned as a gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines and writing materials scattered about. If you like to take an assortment of reading matter to bed, sick or well, you will enjoy a bag like this. Its hanger hook may be sewed to box springs and there you are with everything handy.

The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery materials in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the sateen lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside parts were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; these being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

A fragrant pot of coffee and a few tasty cookies can do the job of entertaining that a dinner once did if there's a spirit of friendliness and plenty of good conversation.

Keep Up Morale, Entertain Simply Even in Wartime

Even if all foods were rationed I'd still say, don't ration hospitality for we need friendly get-togethers, the refreshment and relaxation that being with one's friends gives.

Dinners or entertainments with stupendous foods are out of style at least for the present, but that doesn't mean you can't invite people over for a steaming cup of hot coffee and a few simple but tasty cookies. And, if you want to do things more elaborately, why, it's quite the thing to ask Mrs. Jones to bring over an extra supply of sugar or butter or canned goods if she has them—and is willing to share.

Some time ago progressive dinners were quite the fashion. Now again they can become fun. The plan is to serve, let's say three courses, and have each course at a separate home. It's a good idea to have the homes within short walking distance of each other. Serve soup or fruit cocktail at first home, the main course at the next home, and then have dessert and entertainment at the third home. Or, after dessert, the group can plan to go to a movie or concert or to attend some sport in season.

And now for the business of food—with a few points or none at all. Here are cake and cookie recipes which are the cream of the current crop:

Applesauce Cake.
(No icing needed!)
1 cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
1 cup applesauce
1 egg
1 teaspoon soda
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
1¾ cups cake flour

Cream shortening and sugar. Add applesauce and well-beaten egg. Add soda dissolved in water. Sift dry ingredients and add to mixture. Fold in raisins and bake in a greased square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 hour.

Honey Oatmeal Wafers.
(Makes 16 wafers)
1 egg
¼ cup honey
1 cup oatmeal
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons melted butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nutmeats

Beat egg until light. Add honey, continuing to beat. Then fold in remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls, about 3 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Flatten slightly with a knife dipped in cold water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 10 minutes or until a delicate brown.

A nice type of cookie to have on hand during these times is this one for old-fashioned gingersnaps. The recipe makes 10 to 12 dozen "snaps" and the dough keeps indefinitely in the refrigerator so that it can be used and made up into cookies as needed:

Gingersnaps.
(Makes 10 to 12 dozen)
1 cup molasses
½ cup shortening
3¼ cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon ginger

Heat the molasses over low heat to the boiling point. Put the shortening in a large mixing bowl, pour the hot molasses over the shortening. Stir until shortening is melted. Sift the flour, ginger, soda and salt together and add to molasses mixture. Mix thoroughly. Form into rolls on slightly floured waxed paper and chill in refrigerator. Slice very thin and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a hot (425-degree) oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Having friends over for dinner? They'll enjoy this light souffle put together quickly and easily with mushroom soup and chicken.

Chocolate Pinwheels.
(Makes 3½ dozen)
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk, unbeaten
3 tablespoons milk
1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again.

Cream butter until light, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolk and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough into two parts. To one part, add chocolate and blend. Chill dough until firm enough to roll. Roll each half into a rectangular sheet, ⅛ inch thick, and place chocolate sheet on top. Then roll as for jelly roll. Chill overnight or until firm enough to slice. Cut into eight-inch slices. Bake on an ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (400 degrees) 5 minutes or until done.

A delicious souffle with a few piping hot biscuits and honey makes a lovely dinner for a chilly night. Simple though it is, it will satisfy your company well:

Thrifty Souffles.
(Serves 6)
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
1 can mushroom soup
1 cup chopped chicken
3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
3 egg whites, beaten stiff

Combine tapioca, salt and mushroom soup, of consistency to serve, in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and stir until mixed. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 50 minutes or until souffle is formed.

RUSSIAN RELATIONS IMPROVE

The diplomatic grapevine reports that inter-Allied relations with Russia are going pretty well now. This is certainly true on the surface, and while some irritations have occurred below the surface, both sides have shown a real tendency to try to get along.

Most serious sub-surface irritation was over the Mediterranean Council, through which Russia, the United States and Britain were to confer regarding Italy, North Africa and the Balkans.

The Russians, snubbed earlier in the summer regarding preliminary Italian armistice terms, took the Mediterranean Council seriously and appointed as their representative Andrei Vishinski, the famous prosecutor in the Russian purge trials. This was the equivalent of sending the most outstanding member of the U. S. Supreme court or the leading lawyer of England.

Vishinski is a man of national stature, capable of making Mediterranean decisions without consulting Moscow. But to represent the United States on the Mediterranean Council, Secretary Hull sent Ed Wilson, U. S. ambassador to Panama. Wilson is a thorough-going, competent diplomat who can handle any routine job and handle it well. But almost no one outside diplomacy or Panama has heard of him. He has no national stature and he cannot act on his own.

Immediately it developed that Wilson was to act as a glorified messenger and report everything back to Washington. The British representative was to do the same. In other words, Churchill and Roosevelt were to make the decisions, and the much publicized Mediterranean Council was to be a mere reporting agency.

This immediately roused Russian wrath. They had welcomed the Council, appointed a top man. So for a moment they considered withdrawing. However, for the sake of Allied harmony, they stayed on and are giving the Mediterranean Council a trial.

POOR 'PA' WATSON

Toughest job White House Secretary Maj. Gen. Edwin ("Pa") Watson of the White House secretariat has to tackle each day is keeping the President's appointment schedule on time.

Frequently FDR will sit talking to an old friend for 15 or 20 minutes over the allotted time, and that snarls the White House schedule for the rest of the day.

This is hard on the general's nervous system, especially when bigwigs from the war or navy departments are waiting to discuss military matters. On such occasions Watson is not above barging in and breaking up the conference.

The other day when the President's old friend, Governor Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, was overstaying his time—through no fault of his own—Watson walked in and began to parade nervously about the room.

"Well, here's the undertaker, Mr. President," grinned Kerr, catching the hint. "If one of your callers gets so he doesn't move, 'Pa' will move him."

Roosevelt laughingly motioned Watson to a chair.

"Sit down and talk to us for awhile, general," he said. "We're having a very interesting conversation."

With a sigh, Watson took a chair.

BACK TO NORMALCY

Industry's eagerness to get back to peacetime operation is seen in the deluge of mail received by the chemical division of WPB. Theme of every letter is: Unlace the straightjacket and give us a chance to expand.

This pressure hits the chemical division more than any other because of the tight control which that division has exercised over the industry, and also because of the tremendous future of plastics and other developments in the chemical field.

Controls are so tight that no materials may be bought or sold without clearance with WPB, and in the course of getting clearance, the applicant must state a lot of intimate facts about his business, including buying price, selling price, profit, and inventories.

The real meaning of the complaint is that the industry is not worried about paper work so much as it is worried about limitation on profits. Under government control, prices are held down by the fact that sales are limited to war needs, but when this restriction is removed, the demand for chemical materials will be terrific, and profits will go through the ceiling.

Shingle roofs should be kept well painted or stained as a protection against destruction by the elements and to insure against the developments of expensive and difficult-to-find leaks.

When the soldier talks about "the skipper" he means his captain, the head of his company. And that's just what the title "captain" means. It comes from the Latin word "caput" meaning "head." Another leader high in the Army man's favor is Camel cigarettes—they're first choice with men in the Army. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) When you're sending gifts from home, keep in mind that a carton of cigarettes is always most welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Robot Radio Operator

The lives of many torpedoed seamen may be saved by a new invention.

It is an automatic wireless transmitter. The ship's name and code mark are inscribed on a film, and the vessel's position is inserted on the film as often as conditions demand.

When a vessel is torpedoed or mined, the transmitter comes into action and continues to send out the ship's name as long as the ship remains afloat without the radio operator standing by. The inventor is Captain Espeseth, a Norwegian seaman.

Pictures Train Soldiers

The motion pictures made and used by the war department to train soldiers in scores of subjects now total more than 1,000 films and are being produced at the rate of about one every 24 hours.

For you . . . a winner every time. Despite rising prices everywhere and for 'most everything our rates are still be some low rates that you benefitted by back in 1940. This business-controlled industry has been able to keep up high standards by longtime planning. For a sure thing in war-time economy . . . it's electricity! For a mere nickel you can operate your radio for about 17 hours . . . your electric clock for 25 days . . . your refrigerator for 40 hours. Electricity is still your biggest bargain. Use as much of it as you need, but be sure not to waste any!

NO ARMISTICE TODAY

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this world went wild with joy. The world cried "Peace". But there was no peace. There was only a truce.

This time there must be no truce. This time we are grimly determined to see the job through. We will make whatever sacrifice is necessary. We won't let it happen again.

Armistice Day this year marks the beginning of a new call upon our patriotism. A call directed especially to the people of this community.

One of the gravest threats to our all-out war effort is a shortage of pulpwood. We who live in the pulpwood-cutting areas are asked to make good that shortage. We will be paid for our wood, of course. But we are asked to do it as our special part in the war—backing up our own boys in the service.

In whose honor will you cut your cord? A son? A brother? A friend?

Give us his name, and yours, so that both may be entered on the roll of honor. No boy shall die because we failed.

Uncle "Pud" Tucker — Says —

By HOY McCUSKEY

PISTOL TOTIN' MAMAS

Night after night we listen to our Radio tellin' about the good work the wimen are doin' in the Army and Navy. Not once have we heard where one of 'em has learned a thing about shootin'. We've noticed of late that an increasing number of wives are in need of revolver practice and instruction. In a dozen recent incidents the wife has missed her husband entirely or merely wounded him. This is not only a waste of time and energy but it tends to cause the wife to lose confidence in herself, and when confidence departs she might just as well throw her pistol in the cistern. We believe the Government is overlookin' this important school of instruction and should appropriate a couple billion dollars for this important national sport and teach the gals along with the boys how to shoot straight.

—Pud Tucker.

Dick Curreans and family visited relatives in Clarksburg last week-end . . . He is currently being seen without his mustache, and nervously awaited the arrival this week of his lieutenant's uniform . . . Adolph Cooper will become a noted singing master, judging from his son Danny's renditions of "Old Gray Mare" and "Pistol Packin' Mama," taught by his father . . . George Sharp, we are sorry to report, is suffering from a broken wrist sustained in an accident while loading cattle . . . Dr. Norman Price always enjoys a conversation . . . Preston McLaughlin admits he looks nice in his sailor uniform . . . Clark Brumagin telephoned his wife Saturday night from California . . . Bob Miller, A&P manager, proved to her that "a friend in need is truly a friend indeed" when he stood by to offer helpful service . . . Aubrey Ferguson was guest of Phil Conley at the Kanawha in Charleston last Thursday. Hunter McClintic and other regular diners shared the table with there . . . Charles Sharp and Sonny Beard also were in Charleston last Thursday . . . Frank Johnson knows how to do things—and does them . . . Paul Overholt is wishing he had red flannels to display following our first light snowfall Tuesday . . . Edward Rexrode is always very neat looking . . . We also saw Rev. J. C. Wool and Ben Morgan enjoying "one" large box of popcorn . . . Some pleasant folks are Arthur O. Williams, and Messrs. Smead, Skidmore and Bozzard . . . If you need a friend at the court house, see J. E. Barrick . . . For wit, you must talk to Fred McLaughlin . . . Congratulations to G. D. McNeill, whose book, "The Last Forest," is a good seller . . . Dick McElwee, who is so proud of Marlinton's football team, has accepted a coaching position at Webster Springs high school . . . Walter Hanks of the U. S. Navy, spent ten days' leave with his wife and parents here. He is returning to New York, to base port, and will again go to sea. Although this young sailor has seen a good many foreign ports, he still wants to see more. And war experiences at sea are mere routine for him now. Someday all our boys will be home to stay, and that's the day they're all looking forward to.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former newspaper feature editor, has been inducted into the army and is nearing his completion of basic training at Fort Bragg, N. C. He has been classified as cook and in addition his failure to master some of the fundamentals of army training have resulted in considerable extra KP duty for him. He has also learned the finer points of "goldbricking" and "shooting the breeze." Hargrove has become editor of a section of the camp paper and these duties have kept him away from a lecture series. As we pick up the story, his sergeant is assigning him once more to KP for this infraction. Hargrove is trying to explain. He speaks:

CHAPTER XIV

"Sergeant, for days I round up news from battery reporters. There is always too much or too little. When there is too little, I have to write what is needed. When there is too much, I have to choose which battery reporter is going to horsewhip me for leaving his copy out."

"The chaplain is right up the street," the sergeant said.

"Then I have to edit all the copy, delete all classified military intelligence and take out all nasty cracks at first sergeants. Then I have to write headlines for all the stories and place them in whatever space I can find for them. Then I must draw everything up into pretty little pages. This is tedious and nerve-racking work."

"The chaplain will give you a sympathetic ear," the sergeant said. "I will give you only KP. Does anything you are saying relate to what we're talking about—why you weren't in the mess hall yesterday afternoon?"

"I was getting around to that, sergeant. On the day before the paper is issued, I have to go into Fayetteville to keep a careful watch over the printers, to see that they don't put Third Regiment news on the Fourth Regiment page. If I am not there, they may even mix headlines and put church notices under 'Service Club Activities.' It is necessary that I be there."

The sergeant coughed. "I feel for you, Private Hargrove; I deeply sympathize. I wouldn't think of putting you on KP—"

"You wouldn't?" I gasped eagerly.

"Don't interrupt," the sergeant barked. "As I was saying, I wouldn't think of putting you on KP—if you hadn't committed a breach of etiquette by failing to RSVP the invitaion. You didn't tell us you weren't coming. Or why."

I was dozing peacefully at my typewriter the other morning when there came a knock on my elbow and a bright young voice shouted "Hey!" at me. I looked up into the impish, cheerful, and unquenchably mischievous face of the boss' daughter, Miss Sidney Winkel, age four.

"Let's be reasonable, Pvt. Mulvehill," I said; "As you know, I am working on Capt. Winkle's sympathies to get a furlough."

Miss Winkel was dressed like the Navy and looked entirely too energetic for such a drizzly morning.

"I'm to be the Valentine," she said, "and Johnny's going to take my picture and you're to take me up to the Service Club and carry Johnny's things for him and wait for him to get there so you'd better put on your jacket and cap and let's go.

"I'm going to have my picture taken with Spud Parker," she added. Spud Parker is the general's son and is considered quite an eligible bachelor by the younger set.

"There's Tom in the cafeteria," she said. "Let's go see Tom."

Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill, Pfc., was apparently making his morning rounds in search of news. He was, at the moment, engaged in his daily research in the Service Club's kaost and coffee.

"Hello, sir," he said. "Hello, Marion. Pull up a chair. Marion, get the lady a drink. Something tall and cool. Such as a chocolate milk. What's the beat, sir?"

"I'm to be the Valentine," she said, "and Johnny's going to take my picture and old Hargrove has to take care of Johnny's stuff until Johnny comes and I don't like him anyway because he makes faces and sticks out his tongue and says wicked and mean and poison-ivy things when there's other little girls are around and he's not my boy friend anymore."

"No punctuation," I said. I was glad my tong was stuck out my tongue at her.

"I'm not mean I mean," she said. "I'm going to bring some more and every time he sticks out his tongue I'm going to put some on it because it isn't nice to stick out your tongue." She emphasized her statement by paralyzing my wrist with her fist and sticking her tongue out at me.

"Let's have no unnecessary vibrations, McGee," said the Lieuthomas, looking up reproachfully over his glasses. "Coffee is five cents the cup." He beamed at her. She beamed back at him.

"I have seven boy friends," she said, raising one forefinger delicately and rubbing the other against it in a highly jeering gesture. "I have seven boy friends and you're not one of them and you're not anybody's boy friend." She hit me this time on the elbow and I made a horrible face at her.

"Myaaah," I said. "Who wants to be your boy friend anyway?"

"I wish you wouldn't blow smoke," she said. "It makes me cough and it's not nice to smoke anyway. Old cigarettes!"

I wearily crushed my last cigarette in the ash tray. "Women, the eternal reformer," I sighed. "It wasn't like this in the Old Army."

Miss Sidney Winkel took off her sailor cap and arranged her big red hair ribbon. "You're a nasty old thing and you're not nice like Johnny and Tom and Lieutenant Meek and Captain Wilson and all my other boy friends," she said. After a pause she added, airily, "And Major Long and Captain Quillen, too."

"Myaah," I sighed, wrinkling my nose more violently.

"Oh there's Johnny," she suddenly cried, "and he's going to take my picture and—" She tripped off with a bewitching smile for Bushemi and a running line of babble.

"No punctuation," I said to Mulvehill.

"It's a woman's world, McGee," he said, reaching for another slice of toast.

"Get him away from me, Bushemi!" roared Private Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill. "He's got that gleam in his eye. Get him away!"

"You're just being difficult, Lieuthomas," I told him. "Just sit down and relax." The Lieuthomas laid his enormous frame on the bunk and started slapping his knees in utter despair.

"What kind of deal are you trying to swindle this time?" he asked.

"Let's be reasonable, Private Mulvehill," I said, patting him reassuringly on the shoulder. "As you know, I am now working on Captain Winkel's sympathies to get a furlough sometime in February . . . the first half of February."

"I know what's coming," he screamed. "And I won't do it! I can't do it!"

"Now, as you know, furloughs are laden with little expenses—necessary little expenses. To help me along with the load, Sergeant Sher and Private Bushemi have already made philanthropic little loans. I have your name on my honor roll here, Lieuthomas. What's the donation?"

The Mulvehill cringed and edged away. "What do you need—from me?"

"Well," I estimated, "I should say that ten dollars."

"Great gods and refugee children," he gasped. "Ten dollars he says yet! Why don't you ask me for my life's blood? Six dollars he owes me already and now he's asking—oh, I can't stand it! I can't stand it! Take him away!"

"My life's blood," he moaned. "Where's the six I lent you two months ago?"

"That was only five weeks ago," I reminded him gently, "and I've already paid two of that back. Three weeks ago I paid it back."

"Yeah," he protested, "but you borrowed it back the next day." He rose and paced the floor. "What are they doing to me? My life's blood they would draw from my veins? Thirty-six measly little dollars a month I make—and he wants ten dollars! Maybe I'm Winthrop Rockefeller I should lend out ten dollars a clip! Thirty-six dollars, and he wants half!"

"You see, Lieuthomas, a sad and work-worn creature—an Alice sit-by-the-fire whose only hope for the future is in the faint glimmering hope of a furlough. Day after day, week in and week out, I have worked my frail fingers to the shoulder blade to make things pleasant for you and Bushemi and Bishop. I have patched your quarrels with the mess sergeant. I have saved you from the terrible wrath of provoked Rebels. I have sat here at night, sewing buttons on my blouse so that you wouldn't have to wear it hanging open on your merry jaunts to town. Money could not pay for the things I have done for you and Bushemi. And now this. Ten dollars between me and spiritual starvation—and on ten dollars. How sharper than a serpent's tooth."

"Don't talk like that, Hargrove," he said, his voice cracking. "Put me down for ten."

There was a little note stuck in my typewriter when I came back from gathering the news. It looked like Private Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill's writing. "The stockholders of the House of Hargrove's Creditors," it read, "will hold a business meeting this evening about seven o'clock in the section of Barracks No. 5. Head quarters Battery. Please be present or we will beat your head in."

It was the day before my furlough, so I got the general drift. The vultures who were contributors to the furlough would probably stand around frowning and figure out some sort of budget for my vacation. I could picture the blue-nosed demons slashing away at my enjoyment.

The meeting had an unexpectedly small attendance: Maury Sher, mess sergeant of Battery D of the Third and chairman of the ways and means committee of the Union; Private Bushemi, principal stockholder and president; and Private First Class Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill, chaplain.

Private Mulvehill beamed. "Sergeant Hart sends his regrets. He has a heavy heavy in Lillington. He is with us in spirit, though."

"Come in, drip," said Bushemi.

Sergeant Sher got down to business. "I've got to hand it to you, son," he said. "Gone through this much of the month and still haven't tried to get any of your furlough money back from the chaplain! We're all proud of you."

"Shucks," I blushed. " 'Twern't nothin'. I was able to bum a cigarette here and there."

"McGee," said Mulvehill, clearing his throat, "you leave tomorrow for New York, where there are many snares to trap the unwary. Don't buy any gold watches in the park or any stolen furs anywhere. You know, I presume, about buying the Brooklyn Bridge."

"Now, we don't have any restrictions about the way you use your money," said Bushemi. "Only last time you spent too much money on taxicabs. You'll have to use the buses and subway more this trip. All the shows you want to see, all the books you can buy—but taxicabs only for very special dates."

"Little man," she said, "will you please ask the waiter for more water?"

"Somebody has been exaggerating this taxicab—" I began.

"Taxicabs," Sher broke in, "only for very special dates. You may go to the opera once if you sit downstairs and twice if you sit in the Famile Circle. You are not to buy more than six theater tickets. In uniform, you can see all the movies you want for two bits each."

"And be conservative in tipping the waiters," said Mulvehill, tapping his glasses on the window sill. "Very conservative. Short-change them, if necessary."

"Tell him about the budget," said Bushemi, with unnecessary impatience.

"As the matter stands on the furlough deal," said Sher, "you owe Bushemi 22 dollars, me 10, Mulvehill 10, Hart 10. That's 52 dollars. Counting the ten you'll wire Bushemi for before the week's over, it's 62. With what money we have taken from you and given to the chaplain during the past few weeks, you should make out all right."

"Must I be treated as a child?" I asked.

"When you get back broke, McGee," said Mulvehill, "you are not to eat breakfast at the Service Club. You are not to take out any post exchange books. You will get your cigarettes from Sergeant Sher, who will ration them out to you as per budget."

Sergeant Sher, Private Bushemi, and the other members of the Union of Hargrove's Creditors would have been quite pleased at the sight. Instead of spending their money lavishly on taxicab sightseeing trips and expensive shows, I was dining quietly in a conservative grillroom with the Redhead. We weren't even discussing ways to spend their hard-earned money.

"Little man," she said, "will you please ask the waiter for more water?"

"I beg your pardon," he said, rather unctuously. "There is a fifteen million gallon shortage in water at this very instant. On the other hand, madame, all supply ships to Great Britain use Scotch whisky as ballast for the return trip. Perhaps madame would like a glass of Scotch whisky?"

The Redhead lifted an eyebrow.

"I wonder," she said, "what they use in the finger bowls here—rubbing alcohol? I do not want Scotch whisky. I want water."

"It is as madame wishes," the waiter said, bowing from the knees. He walked away and returned again to lean against a post. The Redhead drummed her fingers on the tablecloth.

"Don't be afraid of him," said the Redhead. "Call his bluff."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 14

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE SANCTITY OF THE HOME

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:14; Matthew 5:27-30; Mark 10:2-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.—Matthew 5:8.

As the divinely appointed center of man's life, the home holds a place of such importance that it is the special target of Satan's offensive. That has always been true, but it seems that in recent years the onslaught against the home has been intensified.

Books, plays, movies, magazines, all contribute their filthy efforts to break down all sense of moral responsibility. Sex is magnified, and not in any useful or normal sense, but rather for the stimulating of unholy desires and purposes, the breaking down of Christian standards of living, and the ultimate prostitution of the most sacred of all human relationships to the lowest level of which animals might well be ashamed.

All this means that this lesson should be taught with a holy boldness and plainness which will make it effective for God in our homes.

We do not like to talk about adultery and related sins. We must speak with care and tact, but perhaps the time has come for some straightforward dealing with an unpleasant situation.

I. Protect the Purity of the Home (Exod. 20:14; Matt. 5:27-30).

Any violation of the divine plan for the marriage of one man and one woman, in loving communion for the founding and maintenance of the home, is a direct violation of the law of God.

It is also a violation of the law of man. It brings serious results in the destruction of the home, and in the ruin of individual life—physical, moral and spiritual.

The words of Jesus broaden the interpretation of the commandment to cover all sexual impurity in thought, word, or deed.

We are to be firm and definite in our dealing with this temptation to moral uncleanness even though it be as painful as tearing out an eye or losing a hand. The command here is not necessarily to be interpreted literally. Tearing out an eye will not help if there is lust in the heart. The point is, go to the root of the matter, and get rid of it even if it hurts. Most of us are far too easy on our sinful impulses. We dally with them when we should destroy them.

II. Recognize Marriage as a Divine Institution (Mark 10:2-8).

The Pharisees, who had devised some ingenious schemes for getting rid of an undesired wife, wanted to get Jesus involved in the question. They put him up against Moses who had allowed divorce.

Jesus made it clear that this was not in accord with God's plan and only took place because of their sinful hardheartedness.

As a proper background for the discussion of divorce He set up the divine origin of marriage. He made it clear that marriage was ordained by God, and that it involves a holy union of two individuals which makes them one.

All those who look forward to marriage should realize that it is not a casual thing, or a merely temporary legal contract. It is a union for life—be it for better or worse, in sickness or health, in prosperity or adversity. All who are married should highly regard their sacred vows.

The high place of marriage in Christian teaching dignifies that relationship and denies the misleading and destructive theories of men.

III. Follow God's Law on Divorce (Mark 10:9-12).

Failure to observe God's law in these matters may involve a person in the guilt of gross sin. This passage and others teach that divorce is to be permitted on the one ground of adultery (Matt. 5:32).

Divorce and remarriage other than on grounds permitted by God involves the parties in the sin of adultery. Men may make laws based on the civil contract of marriage which provide differently, but man cannot remove marriage from its place as a divine institution, nor can he add to or take away from God's law concerning it.

Aware, as we are, of the laxness of some branches of the church in such matters, and the almost entire lack of standards in the world, we cannot but present the plain teachings of our Lord and urge every reader to follow the commandment of God's Word.

There can be no question that divorce is a major evil in our day. Statistics are positively shocking, but they are cold and quickly forgotten. But who can fail to see, and who can forget, the awful woe brought into American home life by divorce.

Bad as it is, the awful effect on parents is nothing compared to the nervous, moral and spiritual shock which comes to children in broken homes. And that problem is everywhere.

That Should Be Fast Enough to Suit Anyone

An excited woman stalked into the dry goods store and threw a faded apron upon the counter. "Look at this!" she cried. "Just look at this!"

"I am looking at it," said the young lady behind the counter. "What about it?"

"What about it?" shouted the woman, "what about it? Why when you sold me that apron you said that its color was fast. And what happened? Why the color came out at the very first washing!"

The girl looked at the woman in surprise.

"Well," she remarked, "that certainly was fast!"

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and fatigue—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become overtaxed and fail to filter excess waste and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys in cases of burning excess body wastes. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

ASK FOR SOMEBODY

A man came home in the small hours of the morning and, having a difficult time of his wife, described in graphic with epithets.

Taking all the above, the court ordered the couple amicably against the husband first, and, with the proper oath, separated him and his wife a sigh of relief, he went all to sleep.

In the morning he looked around for his wife, and suddenly remembered she had been starting with an ax for the past few hours.

Regret

Miss—Where would do you most like?

Miss—To forget me.

Miss—You ought to be polite and say, "No, you."

Miss—You should I be glad to be polite?

Indoor Sport

Mother—Don't you know the Lord Himself

Mother—No. I never met him.

Mother—Don't Pretty. He gets home to watch me.

SHOP IN SOMETIME

Let Us Find

A Sunday School superintendent who was always enthusiastic about regular attendance announced at meeting: "Out of our whole school five teachers only was absent a whole today—Miss Jones. Good-ah—let us stop be at it!"

Friend in Law

Editor—Are you a friend of the prison, mother?

Lady Lecturing at stands—I should not say! I'm the world's mother!

SELLING POINT

He'd been standing in the town square for some time, trying to sell his wares without much success. But now he'd managed to collect a crowd, and started again with renewed hope.

"Now here's a comb for you!" he said hoarsely. "And what a comb! You can bend it, bend it, hit it with a hammer, and it won't break. You can—"

Then a tired voice came from the crowd:

"But can you comb your hair with it?"

No Improvement

Smith—Why don't you change the sign over your store to say "Trade With A. Swindler" doesn't look very good.

A. Swindler—I figure that wouldn't be much improvement. You see our best name is false.

Please Don't!

Customer—Now, ladies and gentlemen, I must warn you not to forget everything.

Voice in the back—Shut up, for once in!

TO YOUR Good Health by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

THYROID EXTRACT

When an individual is nervous, jumpy, overactive mentally and physically, heart rapid, the physician usually advises a metabolism test which shows the rate at which the body processes are working. In a case such as the above, the test will usually show that the body processes of this individual are working 15 per cent or more faster than normal. And the cause of this speeding up process is an overactive thyroid gland. The treatment is rest and iodine and if necessary removal of the thyroid gland by surgery or X-rays.

Dr. Barton

On the other hand, where the individual is sluggish mentally and physically, is overweight, and skin shiny, the metabolism test will usually show that the body processes are working at a rate of 15 per cent or more below normal. The cause is an underactive thyroid gland and these patients are given thyroid extract daily to bring the rate at which the body processes work up to normal.

The above symptoms of the overactive and underactive thyroid gland describe what should be called advanced cases. What about cases where the symptoms are not so pronounced?

In the slightly overactive cases, rest of body and mind is needed, and in the slightly underactive cases some stimulation of mind and body is needed.

Physicians have been finding many children in whom nose and throat infections, and also intestine disturbances and infections occur so often that they suspect some underlying condition of the body as being the cause. Dr. M. H. Stiles in "Archives of Pediatrics" (children's diseases) states that because some children were having distension of the abdomen and other symptoms pointing to a lack of thyroid juice in the body, studies of the basal metabolism were made in a group of 30 children and teen-age boys and girls, in whom there were persistent colds, bronchitis and inflammation of ears and of stomach and intestine. Of the 30 children studied, 90 per cent had basal rates below zero or less, and 60 per cent had rates of minus 10 or less, and for the whole group, the average rate was minus 11.

Of the 30 patients studied, 18 were given thyroid extract. Of these 18, there were 15 who showed great improvement, and only three were not improved. Where, then, these symptoms keep occurring, the metabolism test might well be given.

Excess Fluid in Body Puts Strain on Heart

When the heart is beginning to fail, the first symptom noted is shortness of breath after exertion, and especially after eating. Palpitation—hard beating of the heart—is another early symptom of a failing heart. Even lying down does not ease the shortness of breath or quiet down the palpitation for some minutes.

Another symptom to appear in early heart failure is swelling of the ankles or of the other parts, especially the liver.

The first thought in the treatment of early heart failure is to reduce the amount of work done by the heart by resting more, strengthening the power of the heart muscle yet quieting it if necessary. The drug used to strengthen the power of the heart is digitalis which not only slows, steadies and strengthens the heart action, but helps to drive the water from the tissues. The work of the heart is greatly reduced by reducing the amount of water in the tissues.

In Southern Medicine and Surgery, Dr. J. B. McLester, Birmingham, the noted food and nutrition authority, makes the following suggestions in the treatment of heart patients.

"Weigh the patient every day; increase in weight is the first sign of excess fluid in the tissues. The increase in weight occurs several days before the appearance of liquid—swelling—in the ankles and other tissues. If the swelling (edema) is present or if the weight increases, have the patient stop using salt in his food and rest as much as possible." Excess water in the tissues must be removed by use of ammonium chloride, in 12 gram doses, three times daily for three days, if the low salt diet fails to remove it.

But MY Case is DIFFERENT . . .

The members of Your Ration Board must act as judge and jury

Almost everyone thinks that HIS case is different. The man next door—the lady down the street! Even you, perhaps!

But—it's up to the members of your War Price and Rationing Board to pass judgment—to act as judge and jury.

Their task isn't always pleasant. It isn't always easy. No one likes to refuse a friend or disappoint a neighbor. But sometimes that's necessary.

They put in long hours. They work without pay. But they're glad and proud they volunteered to do this job. It's their way of keeping faith with the boys at the front. Be neighborly with those neighbors of yours. Make it easier for them to do their job.

Wade Thanks Teachers

Chairman E. H. Wade of the Pocahontas County War Price and Rationing Board yesterday thanked the school teachers of the county for their "splendid job in the registration for War Ration Book 4."

Mr. Wade announced that 11,321 copies of the new ration book were issued at schools during the registration period last month. This total compared with 12,038 copies of War Book 2 issued last winter.

"In thanking the school teachers, Mr. Wade said:

"We are indeed grateful for the splendid job performed by the school teachers of Pocahontas county. The efficient and speedy distribution of the new ration book was made possible by their volunteer help. It would be impossible for us to distribute the book satisfactorily without their services. I am sure that every citizen of Pocahontas county appreciates this contribution."

Any person who failed to receive Book 4 may make application at any time at the Board Office by mail or in person by presenting Book 3 and filling out an application. Application blanks will be mailed upon request.

They BOTH have a stake in their Electric Company!

Paul Packard owns some stock in the local light and power company. Jimmy, the newsboy, never bought a share of stock in his life. But he has a stake in the electric company too — because Jimmy's bank invests his small savings in just such businesses. Your savings bank, your life insurance company, your fraternal order probably put some of your money into electric securities. In a very real sense, the electric light and power companies were built by the same people they serve. For in them are savings of 45 million bank depositors and 66 million insurance policyholders — your savings — invested in American business and carefully managed by experienced business men — for you — and for America!

With the success of the Pocahontas County National War Fund drive practically assured, according to this week's report of Harper M. Smith, chairman, this county takes its place among the leaders who have reached their quotas in the nation-wide effort to raise $135,000,000 for the eight-teen associated groups.

Boosted by a donation of $200 from the International Shoe Company and generous gifts from other contributors who were interested in seeing the campaign go "over the top" here, Mr. Smith reported Tuesday that the funds in hand amounted to $3,160.66. In addition, word was received from three district workers that they had aggregate sums amounting to $280.00, making the known contributions amount to $3,440.66, and leaving only $53.34 to be raised to the quota of $3,500.00.

Chairman Smith pointed out that persons who had not yet made their donations could now bring the drive in this county to its completion by doing so immediately.

Farm Bureau Meets

Farm Bureau leaders from all sections of the county met Monday in the County Agent's office to make final plans for the 1944 membership campaign. Leaders present set up a membership goal of 315 for 1944, which represents a substantial gain over 1943 affiliations.

Plans also were completed for a series of community meetings to be held December 6, 7 and 8. Time and places for these meetings will be announced in the December 2 issue of this newspaper.

Paper Parachute Developed by Navy For Dropping Supplies

The Navy Department has developed a paper cargo parachute and orders for its production are now being placed by the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts. Such a parachute is expected to be especially useful in dropping supplies, as in cases where troops in combat areas are cut off from their lines of supply.

This announcement came at a time when powerful government agencies and 1600 newspapers in the 27 pulpwood-producing states were backing the special Victory Pulpwood Campaign to encourage the greater production of war essential pulpwood. Faced with a serious pulpwood shortage, which threatens the nation's military and civilian war efforts, the campaign sponsors are encouraging farmers and woodsmen to:

"Cut-a-Cord of Pulpwood for Every Local Boy in the Armed Service."

The new cargo parachute is made from specially creped kraft paper and has been in the process of development and testing for the last four months. It will safely carry a load of 100 pounds when released from a plane flying at a speed of 180 miles per hour. It is 16 feet in diameter when open, and will withstand any kind of atmospheric condition, not being damaged by rain or other climatic factors.

To be used only for dropping supplies from the air, the paper parachute costs approximately one-fifth as much as the standard human parachute and will effect a considerable saving in nylon and other fabrics used in ordinary escape parachutes.

Mrs. E. L. Cutlip Elected President of Farm Clubs

Seventy persons attended the 4th annual Farm Women's Achievement Day meeting here last Saturday. Mrs. E. Clyde Fansett, county president, was in charge. Following reports by officers and committee chairmen, the group elected officers for the new year as follows:

President, Mrs. E. L. Cutlip of Sweet; vice president, Mrs. Grace Yeager of Marlinton; secretary, Mrs. Ruth White of Minnehaha Springs; treasurer, Miss Ethel May of Sweet; reporter, Mrs. R. M. Hiner of Hunters; and historical leader, Mrs. Walter Shafer of Edray.

Luncheon was served at 12:30 at the Methodist Church, and the program which followed featured a talk on "Food Fights for Freedom," by Miss Gertrude Humphreys of Huntersville. Persons who had served as neighborhood leaders were given certificates, and the Minnehaha Springs club was awarded the annual achievement award for the past club year.

Marlinton Meets White Sulphur In Play-off Here

Football fans from far and near will be attracted here Saturday for the outstanding game to be played by Marlinton high school this year.

The game will not only be a thriller between two god teams, but will also have further significance because it will determine the winner for the season in the Northern Division of the Greenbrier Valley Athletic Conference.

Saturday's playoff, which is scheduled for 2:30 p. m., on the local field, will bring together the grid teams of Marlinton and White Sulphur high schools, both undefeated in Conference games this season. The victor will then play the successful opponent in the Southern Division in a Conference championship game to be held at Lewisburg on Thanksgiving day. Contending for honors in the Southern group are the teams of Alderson and Ronceverte high schools.

Arrangements for this week's contest between Coach Arnout Yeager's Copperheads and White Sulphur were completed at a meeting of coaches held Monday night at Renick.

Officials are announced as follows:

Referee—John Kellison.

Umpire—Basil Sharp.

Headlinesman—Max Poscover.

NEELYITES PRIMING ANOTHER NEW ONE

The Neely administration is reported to have thrown two stalwarts overboard recently — and won't toss them even a life line! For a long time, Ernest Lawrence Bailey, State Road Commissioner, was the fair-haired boy, and was all set to try for the Democratic nomination for Governor with the blessing and effective support of the state administration. He walked the plank months ago.

Then the state bosses selected another Bailey — Judge Robert D. Bailey, of Wyoming county — as the successor. He had been appointed to the state Senate by Neely, and in that body had apparently carried out orders to the best of his ability. For a time he was touted as the "crown prince" of the Neely regime. He also has walked the plank.

Now the palace guard is directing a campaign from under the golden dome in behalf of Judge E. H. Foster-linker, of Wood county, former circuit judge but now on the Public Service Commission. His main claim to fame (and state house support) seems to be that "they haven't got anything against him."

Cass Four-H Club Elects Catherine Sheets President

The Cass Do-More De-More Four-H Club held a meeting on October 28 at the home of Dorothy Lee Mick. Marie Dill, leader of the club, had charge of a program upon the subject "October—in Review," during which various members told of things which had happened in October. Columbus Day, Navy Day, Fall Harvesting, Football, National War Fund Drive and the reorganization of 4-H Clubs were cited. The members sang "Shine On, Harvest Moon."

Officers elected for the reorganized club for this year were: President, Catherine Sheets; vice president, Maxine Fisher; secretary, Maxine Shinaberry; treasurer, Bertha Lee Dill; news reporter, Evelyn Galford; and song leader, Dorothy Lee Mick. Finance, Program, Recreation and Membership committees were appointed by the president.

Attending were Catherine and Norman Sheets, Maxine and Marshall Shinaberry, Julia and Maxine Fisher, Bertha Lee and Marie Dill, Gladys and Dorothy Mick.

The club will hold its next meeting in December at the home of Marie Dill.

Street Altercation Fatal to Man, 51

Head injuries sustained in a street altercation here late last week, resulted in the death Monday night at the local hospital of William McDonald, about 51, residence unknown.

Details are lacking, but it is reported that in a fight between McDonald and Brown Cochran, about 28, of near Renick, the latter shoved McDonald's head down onto the pavement. The victim was taken to the local hospital in an unconscious condition, from which he never rallied.

Cochran was placed under arrest, and trial in justice court was set for next Saturday morning, pending the outcome of McDonald's condition.

A coroner's jury performed an autopsy at the Smith undertaking establishment Tuesday and reported that William McDonald had come to his death at the hands of Brown Cochran, and as the result of a concussion.

Radio Group at Arbovale Thanksgiving Evening

The Radio Family Worship Hour group from Fairmont will be at the Arbovale Church on Thanksgiving evening, November 25, at 7:30, for a religious program which will consist of solos, duets and trios, and a message by the Rev. Mr. Session.

The party will consist of Rev. and Mrs. Session, their little son and daughter, and Lowis Brevard with his Hawaiian guitar. No admission will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken.

Meat Needs Good Canning Methods

By ESTHER N. LA ROSE
Home Demonstration Agent

Meat can be canned by the pressure canner or boiling water bath method, but, of course, the pressure canner is preferred since it is safer and quicker. If at all possible, use a pressure canner, but whichever method you use, these suggestions will be helpful:

Sterilize all small equipment and jars to be used in meat canning by boiling them in water to cover for 10 minutes. Use the most sanitary conditions when preparing, packing, and processing meat.

Preparing Meat

Can well-grown, healthy animals. Chill meat 24 to 48 hours to remove body heat and to make meat easy to handle. Cut meat into convenient pieces for packing. Wipe meat with a damp cloth, but do not let meat stand in water. Meat may be canned raw or pre-cooked, depending on the method of canning.

Method 1—This method, used successfully for many years, is most suitable for canning with a pressure canner. Pack raw meat into sterilized jars, avoiding a pack that is too tight. Add two teaspoonfuls of salt to each quart. Adjust lids, and process meat for two hours at 10 pounds pressure, or for an hour and a half at 15 pounds pressure. (This processing time applies to beef, veal, pork, sausage, spare ribs, meat patties, and tongue and heart.)

Method 2—This method has been developed within the past several years. As it permits heat to reach the center of the jar more quickly, it is preferred when it is necessary to can meat by the boiling water bath method.

Sear meat on both sides in oven or in heavy frying pan, or boil it in water to cover. When well-browned, or almost half done, pack it hot into sterilized jars. Add 2 teaspoonfuls of salt for each quart. Add broth or boiling water to cover. Adjust lids and process.

Beef, veal, pork, sausage, and spare ribs need 4 hours of processing; and meat patties, tongue, and heart, 3½ hours.

Boil Before Tasting

If meat must be canned in a boiling water bath, do not taste it until it has been boiled vigorously in an uncovered pan for 10 minutes. Without tasting, discard all food that has a bad color or that looks spoiled. Spoiled food may cause illness or death.

Pork Sausage

A tested and generally approved formula for making sausage is: 50 pounds of meat, 1 pound of salt, and 2½ ounces of black pepper.

Use nothing but fresh pork. Use 3 pounds of lean to 1 pound of fat. Cut meat into 1-inch cubes. Mix lean and fat in correct proportions. Sprinkle seasoning over meat, and mix. Grind sausage through a medium plate on the grinder.

For a sage flavor, add 3 ounces of pureleaf sage finely rubbed to the seasoning before sprinkling it on the meat. For a golden color in your cooked sausage, mix a small amount of brown sugar in the seasoning.

This method of mixing seasoning will insure a uniform favor and an excellent body to the sausage.

Co-op Declares Dividends

Dividends of 2½ and 3 per cent, respectively, have just been declared by Southern States Cooperative's board of directors on the organization's 5 and 6 per cent preferred stock, payable January 1, 1944, President B. G. Locher, Glasgow, Va., who presided, has announced.

The board also authorized the construction and operation on a cooperative basis of a limited number of frozen locker plants so that Southern States may secure experience in their operation as well as use them as instruments of research in this field of food preservation. Practically all fruits, vegetables, meats, and dairy and poultry products can be preserved in such plants.

Forestry Chief Urges Pulpwood Harvest

U. S. Forest Service Photo

"PULPWOOD, sawlogs and other forest products are urgently needed war materials. We are depending on the farm woodland owners of the country for a very substantial share of the production that will be required to back up our men at the fighting fronts. . . . I want to urge every farm woods owner who has saleable timber to do two things: First, cut and market as much wood as he can; and second, follow good forestry practice in cutting it, so that a good stand of young timber will be left growing for future crops.

"Our technical foresters are available in many localities to advise on good cutting practice and to help farm woods owners find markets for their timber."

Lyle F. Watts, Chief of U. S. Forest Service.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Both Parties Study Election Trends; Higher Wage Scale Ends Coal Strike; Permit System May Regulate Marketing As Hog Shipments Flood Packing Plants

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

HOGS:
Heavy Receipts

With hog shipments flooding packing centers and many slaughterers reported shifting receipts to less congested yards, there were rumors that the government may impose a permit system to regulate marketing.

During a recent three-day period, packers received 574,000 hogs, almost 40,000 over the record October peak of the previous week. With packers in possession of from three to ten days' supplies, 250 to 270 pounders brought $14.40 in the Chicago yards, with weights below 180 pounds dropping from 15 cents to $1 under the $13.75 "floor."

Although the government had worked out a permit system for marketing last year, it did not apply it when heavy runs leveled off. According to experts, preference would be given to bigger hogs if the permit system were to be applied now.

Meat Production

Meat production for 1944 will total 24 billion pounds, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported, but increased government needs will cut civilian allocations.

More than 96 million hogs will be slaughtered in 1944, the BAE said, or three million more than this year. Because of smaller spring pig crops, however, next fall's marketings should drop below current levels.

Despite record slaughterings in 1943, cattle on farms should number about 65 million head January 1. Because of the feed situation, total cattle fed should slide below 1943 levels in the corn belt and other areas, BAE said.

Because of a shortage of cows and labor, the 1944 lamb crop should be one to two million head smaller than this year, with slaughter also dropping. Butchering of sheep at 1943 levels would seriously deplete supplies by 1945.

ELECTIONS:
GOP Trend

With the election of Republican Simeon S. Willis as governor of Kentucky, the GOP swept through all recent elections to strengthen indications of a swing in the political pendulum.

In New York, Republican Joe R. Hanley amassed a majority of 345,000 votes to win the lieutenant governorship from Democrat Lieut. Gov. William H. Haskell. Should Governor Tom Dewey decide to make the presidential race in 1944, Party men figure will fill his shoes.

Governor of New Jersey during World War I, Republican Walter Edge ran up a majority of 120,000 votes to win the office again during World War II, having been backed Democrat Vincent Murphy.

Republicans overthrew their Democrat control of Philadelphia with the election of Republican Bernard Samuel for mayor over Willis Hunter Evans, and for mayor over William Bullitt by 80,000 votes.

Said GOP National Chairman Harrison Spangler: "The light of the New Deal has flickered out." Retiring Democratic National Chairman Frank C. Walker: "I read no national trend whatever in . . . the . . . results."

COAL STRIKE:
Agreement Reached

John L. Lewis' 460,000 soft and hard coal miners were ordered back to their jobs following agreement on new wage conditions between the United Mine Workers' steely chief and Secretary of the Interior Harold

L. Ickes, acting on behalf of the government which again took over the pits when a serious strike threatened.

Bypassing the War Labor board which had consented only to a wage increase of $1.12½ daily, Lewis and Ickes worked out a formula boosting the bituminous miners' daily take to $1.50. Under the terms, the work day would be extended to 8½ hours, with miners compensated for the average of 45 minutes of underground travel time, but with their lunch time chopped from 30 to 15 minutes.

Anthracite miners will receive 70 cents more daily, 37.8 cents more by sacrificing 15 minutes of their 30 minutes lunch time, and 32.2 cents more as a result of a previous WLB award.

ITALY:
Line Sags

With Generals Clark and Montgomery bringing their full pressure to bear on the western and central sectors of the Germans' Massico ridge mountain line, the Nazis began to slowly give ground.

As they drew back along the west coast, they planted extensive mines and dynamited and blocked off roads, impeding the advance of pursuing Allies.

Smashing through during the night, British troops captured Isernia in the center. By so doing, Montgomery's Tommies cut the Nazis' forward east-west supply road, forcing them to use other routes behind the mountains.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Smash Jap Squadron

The battle to clear the enemy from the northern Solomons was on.

U. S. troops were pouring ashore at Rekata bay on Bougainville island. In darkness and rain, reconnaissance reported the approach of a strong Jap naval squadron to resist the American landings. U. S. squadrons headed north for the fight.

Ninety minutes of brass maneuvering was followed by two hours of fighting. Toll: One Jap cruiser and four destroyers sunk. U. S. loss: Damage and casualties.

Then, feeling secure, U. S. troops pressed inland on Bougainville. At the four great bases of Rabaul to the west, U. S. Navy dropped hundreds of tons, with Allied headquarters claiming 100,000 tons of enemy shipping sunk or damaged.

Record Debt for U. S.

As of October 31, the direct federal debt of the U. S. stood at approximately 165 billion dollars.

Broken down, that represents a debt of $1,393 for every person in the country or $5,000 per family, on the basis of four members. Interest rates have fallen to an all-time low of less than 2 per cent, however.

The present debt contrasts with the one of 65 billion which existed before the war, when the interest rate averaged 2½ per cent. Following World War I, the public debt reached 26½ billion dollars, with over 4 per cent interest.

The present 165 billion dollar debt does not include over 4 billion dollars of government guaranteed obligations.

MANPOWER:
Define Essential Industry

At least 75 per cent of a company's business must be essential for employees to be frozen into their jobs under War Manpower commission regulations.

In plants with essential as well as nonessential production, only workers employed on the essential manufacturing can be frozen into their positions.

Workers frozen in essential industry cannot transfer to other jobs without obtaining release from their employers, unless they can offer evidence that their skills are not being fully utilized in their occupations, or they are not being employed full time.

RUSSIA:
Near Rumania

As German forces retreated in the southern Ukraine, they were only 100 miles from the prewar Rumanian border, while in the north, they fell back to within 45 miles of the old Latvian boundary.

Krivoi Rog remained the focal point in the southern Ukraine, with the Germans fighting bitterly to hold open an escape corridor for their troops threatened with encirclement in the great bend of the Dnieper river. With the Germans holding at Krivoi Rog, it appeared as though they were successful in moving most of their forces from the trap.

Along the Black sea coast further south, Russian troops continued to pour over the bleak, barren Nogaisk plains, with German forces streaming westward toward the Rumanian border. As a result of recent movements, the battle front in Russia ran in almost a straight line from north to south, with the huge Dnieper river bulge eliminated.

EUROPE:
Food Plentiful

With 1½ billion bushels of bread cereals harvested and dairy herds at high levels, Europe's food stocks appear adequate for the next year on the basis of reports of European newspapers and Swedish correspondents. Only pig and poultry supplies are smaller.

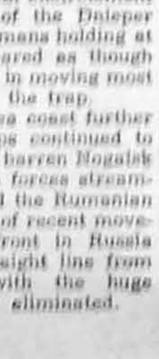
Because of the efficiency of Germany's rationing system, it was said, food will not contribute to any collapse of the Nazi home front. Increased production of vegetable oils are supplementing the Germans' diet. On the other hand, Russia faces serious food shortages this winter, with conditions approaching famine in some areas.

Should the war in Europe end suddenly, big difficulty in feeding the populace would arise in moving the food from the farms to the cities, where plants made idle by cessation of war production would create severe problems of unemployment.

INSIDE JAPAN:
Morale High

Intensive propaganda has had its effect in Japan, with its 90 million people firm in their conviction that theirs is a holy war to smash the white man's economic domination of Asia.

Early victories after Pearl Harbor heightened Japanese enthusiasm, and although overburdened transportation facilities have aggravated the general food shortage with black markets thriving, travelers say that the usually frugal populace has accepted added privations as one of the necessities of war.



Emperor Hirohito

Financed by paper money issuance, Japan's war industries are booming, with everybody from employer to worker prospering. Coolie wages alone have risen from about 34 cents to $2.20 a day. The Japs are heavy war bond buyers.

At head of the Japanese religion, Emperor Hirohito still commands awesome loyalty of the people, with Premier Tojo cleverly playing upon this reverence to mobilize the state.

WAR STOCKS FALL:

Rumors of an early peace resulting from the Moscow conference and victories on the Russian and Italian fronts, caused declines in securities and stocks, including railroads, and an upturn in grain prices on the New York and other markets. Most rubber, aircraft, and shipping issues dropped one to two points, as did many low grade oil stocks.

High class rails and many utilities showed no such price fall. In some conditions, steel broke one to two points a bushel, but recovered later.

Government Needs Reports On U. S. Holdings Abroad

Form TFR-500 Supplies Valuable Information Concerning American Stake In Foreign Lands, Aids Reconstruction.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

When Paratrooper Jones landed "plop" in the midst of a field he had never heard of in a country he had only read about in books, he was able to lead his comrades direct to a certain building whose purpose, importance, construction and contents, almost down to the last nut and bolt, were all known in detail by the American high command. Paratrooper Jones knew just where to get to the point he wanted to leave his dynamite and General Smith, at the headquarters, knew exactly the damage that would result to the enemy when that dynamite went off.

Neither would have had that information if a worried banker in Bingville, U. S. A., hadn't painstakingly filled out Form TFR-500 which the treasury department had sent him.

The information asked for concerned American investments in foreign lands, and the information the government got back made it possible for it to get the detailed blue prints of the factory that Jones blew up from the American firm which had built it and, in this case, the construction engineer who had bossed the job.

The function of these annoying TRF-500's which have already located American investments in 102 countries, the largest single one of which is seven million dollars and the smallest forty dollars, serves other exceedingly useful, if not as dramatic, purposes.

Other Functions

One government official pointed out to me another important function this information plays in nonmilitary wartime activities. He said:

"The more complete information the government has on the total American stake abroad, the more successful will be the efforts of our forces on the fighting fronts, the more quickly will the Allied Military Government be able to restore civilian activities in reoccupied areas, the better equipped our representatives will be to safeguard the interests of the American people during the peace table discussions, and the sounder will be the working out of postwar policies in the field of international economic relationships.

"This survey of American investments abroad is an instrument of vital importance to the future of this country. Most other world powers have long since collected similar information. They not only know the holdings of their own nationals all over the world, but their relations with those of other countries. Their plans are well formulated to protect and develop these investments. Our government believes we should not be less well informed."

This official had a particular reason in discussing this situation with me.

First, he wanted to stimulate the people who had received Form TFR-500 in giving as complete a report as possible.

Second, he desired wide publicity in the hope that other American citizens, individuals, corporations, executives of estates, trustees of charitable organizations who might be able to furnish the information desired, would get in touch with the treasury department and turn it over to the government.

Rehabilitation

Aside from its value to military men, the facts are exceedingly important to the Allied officials who are administering rehabilitation in occupied countries. If they know about a plant that has certain production facilities or trained people who can be used in producing what they desire, it greatly helps their work. It has proved in Sicily, and will prove in Italy, of great value to the Allied administrators to get information concerning the citizens so that they can pick those who are of known non Fascist leanings to cooperate with them.

The information also, of course, is exceedingly valuable to many of the government departments.

Claims for Damage

Another thing that the state department is called upon to do is to assist citizens in getting back their property in countries that have been affected by the war. Also there is the question of claims for damage to American property.

There are more than 100 people in the state department alone who are now working on postwar plans. One of the most important phases of this work is the reopening of trade with the war areas as well as the rest of the world. Of course, the terms under which the trade is reopened may depend on the industrial possibilities of the various areas; and how soon the controls of foreign exchange can be dropped will depend, in a large part, on the extent of the U. S. and other foreign holdings of the obligations of the country in question. All this will affect our exporters here as well as American interests in foreign countries.

The treasury department, as you know, has drawn up the White plan for international stabilization; the British government has the Keynes plan.

None of these projects, treasury officials said to me, which vitally affect the postwar movements of trade and capital, can be intelligibly planned and certainly cannot be put into effect without adequate knowledge of the value and type of United States interests and the number and character of the persons having those interests.

Many other important business negotiations such as private loans to foreign countries, direct investments by American corporations, furthering the good neighbor policy, will be affected by the information in the government's hands. For instance, if the government can say definitely that in a certain area there is very little capital invested in a certain type of enterprise and it is known such an enterprise might be enlarged there, the government might be able to encourage companies with foreign experience to develop such an enterprise.

The Moscow Conference

Washington correspondents for the press associations and some of the country's metropolitan dailies as well as the network broadcasters lived on needles and pins for more than a day and a half before the news of the agreements reached at Moscow were released.

There have been many bad leakages in advance of important international events recently. The state department, the Office of War Information and the Office of Censorship have done their best to protect American newspapers and radio against these violations of premature release of important stories involving foreign countries. The leaks usually have come through foreign officials who whisper a few hints to some of their newsmen friends. They also sometimes occur when news dispatches, radioed in advance for later release, are picked up by the enemy or are divulged in neutral countries.

Every effort was made to prevent such leaks in connection with the Moscow conference. The question of safety of the lives of British and American negotiators was involved. It was feared that if the fact that the conference was over was publicly revealed, the enemy might be on the watch to shoot down the planes carrying Secretary of State Hull and British Foreign Minister Eden and their parties.

Some of us who were affected, learned on the Saturday before the Monday of their official release that copies of the agreements had reached the state department earlier. We had guessed as much since the President commented on the success of the agreement the day before in his press and radio conference. We were told we would receive copies as far in advance as possible which meant that someone representing the various news agencies and networks had to be on duty day and night. Finally, the word came Monday morning that the messages were available and they were given out at ten o'clock for release at one o'clock. We, therefore, had three hours in which to digest the five separate documents.

Fortunately for me, the one o'clock release made it possible for me to report the story a minute and 19 seconds after it was given out on my one o'clock network broadcast.

HONESTY IN ALL THINGS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:15; Leviticus 19:11; Luke 19:1-10, 45, 46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not steal.—Exodus 20:15.

Honesty seems to be so obviously right that one might expect it always and everywhere—if bitter experience had not indicated the opposite to be true.

As a matter of fact, dishonesty has become so common that a person who is strictly honest is a bit of a novelty. Some even think he is peculiar.

Under such circumstances the Christian needs to be vigilant lest he also accommodate his own ideas of honesty and begin to justify little evasions rather than being absolutely upright.

The teaching of Scripture on this matter is very plain.

I. Honesty and Fair Dealing (Exod. 20:15; Lev. 19:11, 13).

The very commandment against stealing implies that men have a right to that which they have made, earned, or saved. If no one had property rights there could be no stealing. Some of our modern isms deny such rights, but their reasoning is clearly not biblical or Christian.

"Thou shalt not steal" forbids every kind of theft, and the passages from Leviticus indicate that this includes more than robbery or ordinary stealing.

It relates to every kind of false dealing with another, such as oppression or the withholding of just wages. That, too, is stealing in God's sight.

Perhaps we ought to be more specific and apply the truth to our own day. Stealing includes such things as loafing on one's job, "borrowing" money from the cash drawer, taking goods from the stock with which one is working, stealing another man's sermon and preaching it as one's own, "lifting" material out of another man's book without credit, contracting debts which one can never pay, using false weights and measures, adulterating food or other material, "watering" milk for sale, selling worthless stock, dodging taxes or lying to the tax assessor, or using a slug instead of a nickel in the telephone to escape proper payment.

One might add gambling (which is taking another man's property by skill or by chance), making an unduly large profit on the labor of another, making money out of the sorrows and failures of others, etc. To be honest means to be fair—and that has broad implications.

II. Honesty and Restoration (Luke 19:1-10).

The reality and thoroughness of Zacchaeus' conversion was indicated by his willingness to restore all the money he had unjustly (but legally, note that!) taken from his fellow citizens—and that in fourfold measure.

Insofar as it is possible to do so, the honest person will make right any known injustice. To be right with God must mean that we are to be right with men. The testimony of many Christians could be presented to show that they have only entered upon real peace and usefulness as they have made consistent effort to right every wrong, to pay every debt.

Often such actions open opportunities for Christian testimony and point others to the redemption in Christ, which makes a man live right as well as talk right.

III. Honesty and Religion (Luke 3:8, 12).

One might think it unnecessary to urge honesty upon religious folk. They ought to be honest. But here we are in sharp contrast to the open iniquity and corruption of Zaccheus, the publican. Zaccheus and Galloway of the priests in the temple. Jesus had already declared the temple of the traffic in money-changing and the sale of animals for sacrifice practiced there (see John 2:13-17). He does mention the religious here because they made the Father's house "a house of merchandise."

And here begins the change of one of a committed Zaccheus they took, have received the attractions. In fact the evil lectures in Christ of God as with their ungodly domination of the temple were used to bring "a rod of correction" to all. This happened so long ago should be to our present day. So does the conscience from the "Law of Conscience" which we have in ourselves that we respect it now.

Seeing of "the groups as in our [illegible] the latter were, "to [illegible] to announce [illegible] and it seemed best, and in fulfillment of one of many prophecies, to begin [illegible] the [illegible] of the disciples in a [illegible] to bring a kind [illegible] to the meaning of the [illegible] a conference or a [illegible] a [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
